H. M. BOWMAN DIES WHEN HE TOUCHES WIRE

Fatal Accident Occurs While Victim Is Working Near Williamsport.

Horton M. Bowman, 29, a linesman employed by the Scioto Valley Railway and Power company, was killed instantly at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he came into contact with a 66,000 volt wire while at work on a pole four miles south of Williamsport on the Williamsport-Clarksburg road. The fatal accident occurred while Bowman was engaged in making the last connection to a new transformer which had been placed on the pole. He was watching the high powered wire on which he was working and apparently forgot the other two power lines.

ASHVILLE MAN BADLY INJURED IN WRECK HERE

John Baker Hurt When His Auto Is Side-Swiped By Another Machine.

John Baker, of Ashville, was seriously injured Thursday evening about 9 o'clock on North Court street, when the Ford coupe in which he was riding was side-swiped by a Chevrolet sedan as it came out of Ringgold pike. In the mix-up the car driven by Mr. Baker was shoved into an Oldsmobile owned by the Rev. Asa E. Elsen, which was parked in front of the Berger home, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Leist.

The injuries to Mr. Baker have not been fully determined. Dr. Howard Jones is giving him medical attention. He has a deep cut close to his spine near the hip and through the night he had several relapses. It is thought that he may be injured internally. The car in which Mr. Baker drove is a complete wreck. It was brought in by the Circleville Motors company for repairs.

The Albaugh company removed Mr. Baker to the home of his brother-in-law, Nolan Sims, on Pleasant street.

The name of the owner of the Chevrolet sedan that ran into Mr. Baker's car has not been obtained but it is thought that the police department will locate the driver. The near tragedy was the forerunner of a social affair that was scheduled for the evening. Mr. Baker's wife and daughter were at the home of his brother-in-law Nolan Sims, to attend a party at the home on Pleasant street, and Mr. Baker was coming down from Ashville to attend the party when he met with the accident.

This is not the first accident at the intersection of Ringgold pike and North Court street as quite a number have occurred there.

The Scioto trail is a main market and federal road, and traffic is supposed to stop before entering on it.

Capacity Crowd Sees Fight Film; State Officer of Eagles Speaks

Golden Rule Cardinal Principal Of Order, Armory Audience Is Told.

The pictures of the fight were excellent, giving close-up and distant views of the action as well as slow motion reproduction of the famous seventh round when Tunney received the benefit of an extra long count.

The screening of pictures was preceded by a brief address by Ralph Bartlett, of Columbus, state vice president of the Fraternal order of Eagles. Insisting that the very basis of the lodge is founded upon the Golden Rule, Mr. Bartlett said:

“Doing unto others constitutes a great part of the activities of the human race. The test appears in the family, the community, and the state. What thus to do and how to do it has been the problem of the ages. In the unbending law of evolution, the law of the survival of the fittest, it appears to be destruction of others. The principle that ‘self-preservation is the first law of nature,’ seems to have ingrained selfishness into the very being of mankind—each for himself alone was the impelling thought of primitive man.

RUNAWAY YOUTH IS APPREHENDED

Emmett Webb, 15, son of A. J. Webb of Kellogg, West Virginia, was apprehended in the city Thursday, charged with being a runaway, by Policeman Will McCrady who took him before the Juvenile Division of the Probate Court, from which office young Webb made a successful attempt to escape. Later in the afternoon he was re-arrested and placed in the county jail. His retention was telegraphed his father who came here Thursday night and took his son home.

VETERAN FISHERMAN REVEALS MANY SECRETS OF SCIOTO RIVER

(By “THE RAMBLER”)

The man who knows the Scioto river. That's the title W. M. “Dude” Stottlemire proudly lays claim to. And he has a right to be justly proud.

For sixty years, “Dude,” as he is affectionately known, has lived on the banks of the stream that meanders through the outskirts of Circleville and flows sluggishly through Pickaway county from Columbus to Portsmouth and then into the Ohio river. It rises in the Hardin county marshes, west of Kenton.

And for over this half century, “Dude” who tells me he is on his way to his 71st birthday, has fished, hunted, trapped and boated his way up this river, until now it has come to be his old friend and he watches over it jealously in his official position as bridge tender, which he has held for 16 years.

“Dude” has piloted boats up down the river. He still has a rowboat, refusing to purchase a motor boat because he still believes that the old-fashioned rowing way is the best.

“What if the motor would happen to stop,” he said, “then where would I be?”

During the flood of 1913, Mr. Stottlemire had seven boats at the service of fishermen, who were helping clear up the communication system.

“Dude” is best known as a fisherman. He has caught and dressed as high as 500 pounds of fish in one day. His biggest catch was out of the Big Walnut years ago, a 65-pound grumpy cotfish. There is still catfish catching in the Scioto river, but sewage dumped into the river at Colum-

4 FLOOR GAMES ARE CARDED AT ATHLETIC CLUB

Annual Competition of Pickaway Schools to Provide Hard Fought Contests

By CARL F. DOEBLER

The Pickaway County basketball tournament will get under way Friday night at 7:00 o'clock, at the C. A. C. gym. Washington township and Scioto township will participate in the first game. The winner of this game will win its first game of this season.

Scioto, this year, misses the services of Birkhead, Davis, and Trego, stars of last year's team. Washington has been displaying some good basketball lately, but is handicapped by the lack of a gymnasium. The game is a toss-up, and a hard fight is expected.

Walnut girls meet the Saltcreek girls in the second game. Saltcreek should not bother the speedy Walnut team, which ought to win easily.

Ashville Favored

Ashville boys should be able to handle the Darby boys if they display their best basketball ability, in the third game of the evening.

“FLINT” AVERS RIGHT NAME IS WALTER BROWN

Defendant Testifies He Never Saw Slain Man After Debt Was Settled.

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—James Flint, as he has been called, alias Walter Brown, of Circleville, held for murder, declared in court Thursday that his real name was Walter Brown. Henceforth this newspaper will refer to Brown by his correct name in future stories on the case.)

The defense rested its case Friday in the trial of Walter Brown, charged with the shooting and killing of John Henry Hill on the night of Nov. 14, 1927, and the case, after final arguments on Monday, is likely to go to the jury in Pickaway county common pleas court on Monday night or Tuesday morning at the latest.

Then will Brown know the fate that will be his, whether he will go free, or to prison, or last—the electric chair!

Several witnesses were to be heard Friday afternoon and final arguments will not likely start until Monday, as court is not held on Saturday.

Explains Movements

Brown, testifying in his own behalf late Thursday afternoon, attempted to explain his movements on Nov. 13, the day previous to the murder, declaring he had been in Chillicothe then. On the sixth of the same month he said he got a gun from one of the men in the railroad camp where the murder took place, merely to keep it for him. This was the gun Mrs. Turner and Mr. Morgan two other witnesses, saw a week prior to the slaying. Brown said the man owned the gun was known to him only as “Red.”

The defendant declared he saw Hill near Caskey's in the south end of the city about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon on the day of the fatal shooting and that Hill paid him $4 of the $7 he owed him. Brown claimed that he never saw Hill after that. Later in the afternoon he joined a crap game near the Pennsylvania railroad and it broke up later and he walked back to Court street with Ed Lowe intending to go to Caskey's again, but Mallet, who is said to have been intoxicated, bothered him and they got in an automobile, drove down the road a distance, and walked back. He said he then went to Turner's later had supper (Continued on Page Two)

War Vet Admits Hammer Murder

Major Cecil Clyde Campbell (left), arrested in Philadelphia, has confessed that he beat to death his common-law wife, Mrs. Mary Lyle McLean of Mamaroneck, N. Y. Campbell claims his act was part of a suicide pact, but after killing her, he remembered some bills he had to pay and so didn't jump out the window, as planned.

Hesitation May Forfeit Valuable Prize in Big Campaign of Herald

Steady Work During Spare Time Is Best Method of Operation in Obtaining Subscriptions—Candidates Now Entered Should See Drive Manager.

It is one of the most common traits found in human nature to go along the same rut and look with a feeling of apprehension upon anything distinctively new. The easiest way is to keep to the beaten track by sticking to the same old routine of life. Nowhere in the world does anyone get ahead by passing up opportunities. When the golden chance is offered the individual who really wants something, admits his ability to take advantage of it. Leaders of today are simply the people of yesterday who saw their chance and took advantage of it without hesitation.

A fact peculiar to subscription campaigns when conducted in a large and liberal manner such as the present Herald's drive, is that many people are delighted with the idea, think, it a great and wonderful thing, but regard it as impossible for “me to win.” Emphatically, the grand prize can be won by anyone now entered, and will be won by the liveliest hustler who goes in with the idea of winning and remains in the fight throughout the campaign. Some one, now busy, will see the wonderful chance lying right here at home and grasp it. Little things will not be permitted to interfere with the winning of the big prize, they will devote all energies possible during their spare time to the campaign and will win. That person will be successful.

It's the person with the “punch” that wins in any competition and this campaign is no exception to the rule. It has been said that the present subscription campaign is what is known as a popularity contest. Let it be distinctly understood here and now for all time that that statement is absolutely false and anyone making such an assertion is prompted by a malicious attempt to belittle such a venture or else it is complete ignorance of the entire proposition. Popularity contests are a thing of the past. They are not used any more by progressive newspapers.

They were put on many years ago and were in a measure successful, but like the silver knee buckle and the powdered wig, have long since passed in the discard. This campaign is not a popularity contest, or a luck contest, but a plain business proposition, whereby valuable prizes are given for votes on subscriptions and those votes are obtained only by hard and consistent work. Popularity will count for naught in this campaign. It is what is known as a salesmanship club campaign and the results are profit sharing. No one can hope to land a prize without doing tall hustling. The rewards are ample to repay anyone for his time and work. The best hustler will win that's clearly evident. Let that (Continued on Page Five)

OFFICER SEEKS EXTRADITION OF CITY NATIVE

Circleville Resident Also Held in Robbery of Greene County Dentist.

Leroy Reeser, 29, of South Clinton street, Circleville, under arrest at Xenia on a charge of robbery, is now charged with murder and his extradition to Alabama is being sought by a detective from Birmingham.

According to the Columbus police, the identification of Reeser as being implicated in the death of Mrs. Lucy Leahy at Birmingham, Ala., was made by Detective Marvin Garver of the southern city who arrived in Xenia late Thursday.

Mrs. Leahy was strangled to death and robbed of $175 and a diamond ring. The woman's body was discovered in her apartment about three days after the robbery when neighbors investigated a gas odor coming from her apartment. The ring later was found at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Caught After Chase
Reeser with a companion who registered as Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, was arrested Tuesday at Waynesville, Warren county, after a chase from Spring Valley, where they are said to have been surprised while rifling the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman. Dental gold and platinum and narcotics are said to have been found in possession of the men when they were searched.

Green county authorities placed a charge of robbery against Reeser and Sheridan.

In Court Here
As a lad of 13 years of age he was warranted into probate court here on the charge of burglary, and larceny and was made a ward of the court by the late Judge A. R. Van Cleaf, at that time publisher of The Circleville Democrat and Watchman. Reeser was placed under the Probation officer until he was 21 years of age. This is the only criminal record the young man had in Circleville. He disappeared from the city and joined the Regular Army in which he remained until the World's war when at Camp Mills, N. Y., he was assigned to Circleville's Co. F, of the 166th Regiment “Rainbow” Division. Since his discharge from the service his whereabouts are unknown. After the death of his father his mother married Harley Funk who now is a resident of the southern portion of the city.

PICKAWAY SEEN AS CENTER OF GARDEN TRUCK

Alonzo Marion Tells Rotary Club of Possibilities in Vegetable Growing.

The Rotary club at its weekly meeting, Thursday noon at the Boggs hotel, listened to a very interesting talk on the "Acres of Diamonds of the Scioto Valley." Alonzo Marion, well versed in the growing of early vegetables, told of the possibilities of Circleville becoming one of the largest shipping centers of farm produce to the markets of the northern cities.

Pickaway county is ideally located to become a center of growing early vegetables and the overnight service to the millions of people in the cities of northern Ohio and Michigan will play a great part in some day making this a reality.

This can best be accomplished by corporation farming instead of co-operative farming and in this way the packing, shipping and selling these products can be best attained.

The farmers of today are getting better acquainted with keeping proper records to put farming on a business like basis. Machinery is playing a big part in successful farming of today and with business methods and proper accounting of their farm records, the farmers of the present day can realize better results from their land, Mr. Marion said.

The winners of the club work in Pickaway county will be entertained by the Rotary club on Thursday, Feb. 23. This meeting will be held at the Parish House at 11:30 o'clock and with Judge Harley Whitcraft as the speaker the members and guests are assured of hearing from a man of rare ability.

Revenue Men to Aid in Income Tax Work

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (UP)—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair has announced that revenue officers will be assigned to public places to aid income tax payers in making out the returns for 1927 payable before March 15, 1928.

In cities government experts will be stationed in banks, trust companies and department stores to aid the tax payers fill out the blanks. Service in rural communities will be furnished by officers who will visit every county seat.

Blair said the service, including administration of the oath, will be without cost to taxpayers.

Prussia Sues Kaiser For $200,000 Claimed Overpaid on Allowance

BERLIN, Feb. 17 — (INS) — The state of Prussia is suing its former ruler, Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm for nearly $200,000.

The case will be decided by an arbitration court consisting of a representative of Prussia, a representative of the former kaiser, and a neutral.

When after the revolution of 1918, Prussia seized all of its de-throned ruler's possessions, it allotted to the imperial family 50,000 marks a month to live on, pending final settlement of the property question.

In 1926, following a national referendum election in which a proposal to confiscate these properties without compensation had been rejected, Prussia returned half of the seized estates to the kaiser by mutual agreement. Now Prussia claims that Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm should also return to its half of the annuities, minus the loans floated to pay it. The half amounts to 471,000 marks.

JACKSON TO MAKE DEFENSE PUBLIC

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 17 — (INS)—Defense evidence of Governor Ed Jackson will be revealed to the public, despite Jackson's court instructed acquittal, on charges of conspiracy to bribe former Governor Warren T. McCray, his attorneys announced here today.

Because of the governor's pleading the statute of limitations, the trial was halted yesterday the seventh day of the trial, by Special Judge Charles M. McCabe before the defense had offered any testimony.

HICKMAN WANTS TO TAKE STAND

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17 — (INS)—William Edward Hickman's desire to appear in his own defense has not deserted him.

This was evident today when it was learned that the convicted kidnaper-slayer of Marion Parker has informed his attorneys that he wants to testify at the trial now in session, in which he and his 16-year-old accomplice, Welby Hunt, are charged with the murder of C. Ivy Thoms during a drug store holdup.

TREES CONCEAL BODIES OF TWO SLAIN OFFICERS

Systematic Search Started For Escaped Prisoners Who Killed Deputies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 — (INS) — With the fate of John P. Grove and Wallace McClure, Indiana deputy sheriffs, definitely established, a systematic hunt for the slayers was being organized here today.

The bodies of the two Tippecanoe county officers were found late yesterday in a thick woods near Covington, Ind., by Charles Abdill, a farmer. The officers had been missing since Feb. 7, when they left Lafayette with two prisoners, Sam Baxter and John Burns, for the Pendleton state reformatory.

Baxter and Burns were Lafayette youths who had been "sent up" for robbery, are being sought for the murders.

The quartet left Lafayette in Grove's automobile ten days ago and that was the last seen of any of the party until the deputies' bodies were stumbled over by Farmer Abdill. They were covered with an auto robe.

A wound in the back of Grove's head indicated he had been struck from the rear by a heavy blunt instrument. McClure's neck was broken. When the party left Lafayette, the deputies were riding in the front seat and the convicts occupied the rear seat manacled together by a single handcuff.

Court News FUGITIVE ARRESTED BY DEPUTY PORTER

Everett Brown, who was mixed up with Leonard Gilmore and others at New Holland, last December on a charge of possession of intoxicating liquors, and who like a fox, slipped through the hands of the sheriff and his deputies when arrested, was placed under arrest Friday by Deputy Sheriff Carl Porter, and was lodged in jail to await a hearing before Judge Joseph W. threw him away from the wire, but his safety belt held him to the pole.

Brought to Ground

On the ground, waiting for him to complete connection, were three fellow workmen; R. P. Brown and Albert Watson, of Circleville, and Charles Ater, of Clarksburg.

Seeing Bowman slump in his belt, Brown climbed the pole and brought him to the ground. Bowman breathed only once after Brown reached him and his body was taken into the home of Frank Carter in front of which the tragedy occurred.

Dr. G. D. Sheets, of Williamsport, was summoned and acted as coroner for Dr. O. H. Dunton. Brown notified, George Seall, foreman of the Scioto Valley line-men, and he called M. S. Rinehart Circleville funeral director, to take charge of the body.

First Death Since 1920

The death of Bowman was the first fatality among the Scioto Valley line-men in this county since Curtiss Shellenbarger was electrocuted in 1920 a half mile south of Circleville.

Bowman was an overseas veteran of the World war, serving during the conflict as a sergeant in Company B of the 28th Infantry. He was the son of Frank and Ida Shannon Bowman, of Canal Winchester. He was born in Duval, O., on Nov. 2, 1898. He was a farmer until he entered the army and while at Camp Dix, N. J., he met Pauline Carson whom he married at Mt. Holly, N. J., on August 31, 1920.

Rites to be Sunday

The accident victim is survived by his parents; his widow, who resides at 217 East Union street, and two sisters; Mrs. Harry Steimen and Mrs. Leslie Smith, both of Canal Winchester.

The body was taken to the home of the parents in Canal Winchester on Friday afternoon by Mr. Rinehart.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Sunday at the M. E. church in Canal Winchester of which he was a member. Rev. Mr. Bailey officiating. Burial will be in the cemetery at Lithopolis, O. Fellow employees of the Scioto Valley Railway and Power company will act as pallbearers.

left his sheepskin coat there and went over to Whittington's.

Fixes Time

He fixed the time of this by the statement that he looked at his watch to see if Byrd's clock was correct and that it was then 18 minutes to 6 o'clock.

Brown testified that from then on he was never out of the house until the sheriff called for him.

His story was identical with that of the Byrd's and Whittington's, on this point, and the state on cross-examination, failed to shake his testimony materially.

Brown declared he was in bed when all the commotion was going on after the discovery of the body and the crime. He was tired from loss of sleep, he explained, and had slept through part of it. He also stated that Charles Byrd had advised him not to go out as they were accusing him of murder, and being down at the railroad camp, as state witnesses had testified.

Arrested Three Times

Brown said he had been arrested three times in his life, the first time when he was 16 for being with a girl he later married; the second time for fighting and the third for assaulting his wife.

Charles Whittington, at this point, was introduced on the stand to show that he got the sheepskin coat from Brown at the jail and Brown identified it as his coat.

Judge Abernethy, for the state, quizzed Brown as to his activities on the day of the murder and of his hunt for Hill. Brown vehemently maintained that he was hunting Hill for the cook and not to collect the $7 that Hill owed him, as Hill had always paid him his debts.

The defense then called two character witnesses, David Frasier, superintendent for Sturm and Dillard company, railroad contractors, and John Jones, timekeeper, who testified that they had known Brown as having a good reputation for peace and quiet and veracity.

Charles Whittington, again called by the defense Friday morning, testified that the sheepskin coat was the same one Brown let him use but it was different now because of being made dirty by his working in it.

Defense Rests

Following Whittington's testimony, the defense rested its case.

The state then introduced Mrs. Ada Morgan, who denied that she had talked with Lowe after Brown was arrested.

Lowe was recalled for cross-examination by the state and he denied that he had gone with Brown to Bell Siding on the day of the murder in the afternoon, but admitted being up there with Brown on the previous Saturday.

The state then called Dwight Lanman, white, who runs the elevator at Bell Siding and Lanman testified that he had seen Brown up at the Siding on Monday afternoon, Nov. 14—the crime day—at about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Asks Another Chance

Mrs. Mary McCullum Averill of Detroit, out on bond under embezzlement charges, claims she needed the money to satisfy the demands of a blackmailer. Mrs. Averill is going to fight for a chance to go back to work and make restitution.

He said he heard the cook ask Brown if he got his $3 and Brown said "No," but that he would get it that evening. Lanman testified that Brown and Lowe took the 4.30 car back to Circleville.

In rebuttal, the state introduced Leona Davis, colored, who testified that she went into Byrd's kitchen the night of the murder, about 10 o'clock, and found Miss Whittington there wringing her hands, that she asked her where Brown was and she replied that she did not know.

Introduce Love Letter

A bit of humor was thrown into the case when Miss Davis on cross-examination, said she had a baby and when Attorney Snyder asked when she answered, "When it was born."

The state recalled Brown who said he had corresponded with Miss Whittington while in jail but that he could not read or write, except his name, and that one of the other prisoners wrote the letters.

Sheriff Davis, on the stand, said he read all the incoming and outgoing mail and had read the letters between Brown and Miss Whittington. One letter of Feb. 15, was introduced signed L. B. Whittington.

Miss Whittington, called by the state, identified this letter of that date as hers, and Judge Brown read it to the jury. It was a love letter from the woman to the defendant.

estine a youthful teacher, Jesus of Nazareth, divine or divinely inspired, who propounded a new doctrine. Instead of retaliation, He taught beneficence: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth,' but I say unto you resist not evil. Ye have heard that if thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy," but I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you; that ye may be children of your Father which is in heaven; for He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and the unjust."

"Realizing that weak humanity could hardly lift itself to this high ideal, He took the old law, 'Do unto others as they do unto you,' and, substituting hope for revenge transformed it into: 'Do unto others as you would wish them to do unto you,'—and then elaborated the Golden Rule—'Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.'"

BIBLE THOUGHT

OUR GOD IS HERE—The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth.—Psalm 145:18.

Unutilized Brain Power.

Many efforts are made to develop the unutilized resources of our country. Our water powers, our soils, our rivers, our forests, our industrial power, are not fully utilized. Scientists show us how we can get more of a product out of these resources.

One of our greatest resources is our brain power, and this is said to be the most neglected of all. A new type of research is to be attempted in the effort to make greater use of the brain power of man. Announcement is made that a group of scientists are to attempt such research through the Neurological Institute of New York. It is declared that man so far only acquired a small fraction, about one fifth, of his possible brain power. He has made wonderful progress in controlling the forces of nature, but he can not control his own personality.

War and crime illustrations of how the lack of use of human brain power creates the most terrible wastes.

Schools and colleges are two great forces which are supposed to develop this brain power. They teach boys and girls certain facts and information, but they can not always give them the right point of view. The young people often come out of these institutions with wrong ideals and purposes, and the abilities given them for the benefit of the community, may be turned to making war against the community.

People may not have much learning, but if they naturally support the ideas that are good and useful, they are better citizens than the most learned ones who are morally lax and lawless.

Most of the facts taught in schools are forgotten, but if you can give a student a useful point of view, so that he becomes helpful to his community and his country, then he has gained something more valuable than any knowledge.

Government of the People.

Perhaps the finest way to remember the career of a great man like Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday the American people celebrated Feb. 12, is to think over the principles which he sought to perpetuate.

The boys and girls in the schools of Circleville should not merely be told about his lowly origin, as an incentive to the humblest young person to make the best of one-self, but the great thoughts which are left behind should be interpreted to them. Such for instance, as the resolve which he asked the nation to make, that "government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Government of, for, and by the people is a difficult thing. It had been tried a great many times before our government had been formed, and many times been given up as a failure. It had so many possibilities of error, the people were so easily taken advantage of, that the majority of political thinkers felt it was a dreamy and impossible ideal. A great many republics have been started in the world, and many have gone to pieces, and their people have given up these ideals. Also many republics now existing are practically governed by dictators, and popular government in them is a sham.

But the founders of our government said that with a sound foundation of laws and constitutions, the idea could be made to work. And it has worked in our country for 139 years, and so far as we can see, it bids fair to work for all time. But this kind of government does not run itself. It calls for two things, popular education and intelligence and a willingness on the part of the people to give some attention to the work of government.

If they neglect the duty of government, certain types of politicians and selfish interests will run it for their own benefit, and it will cease to be of, by, and for the people.

The Weak and the Strong.

"The smallest and weakest nation speaks here with the same authority as the largest and most powerful," said President Coolidge in his address to the Pan-American congress at Havana. It may be difficult for some of our proud Americans to swallow that doctrine, and to admit that the little republics of Central America are entitled to as much weight as our grand country.

Of course the big countries have the major part of the world's work to do, and they must take a major share in deciding the world's policies. But the American nation has consecrated itself to upholding the view that the rights of the weak are just as sacred as those of the strong.

We have fallen short of that ideal in our own national life, yet we admit that it ought to be realized. When the human race attains finer purposes, it will feel that any form of civilization is hard and unworthy which fails to give weakness its full rights.

SYNOPSIS
Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beautiful orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoire. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. She rejoins Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The King plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is spirited to prison. Fabien goes there to rescue her, and is faced by Ravoire.

"You!" exclaimed Fabien in amazement; then continued, "There must be some mistake, I wish to see the Provost of Police."

"I am he!" the Count replied with a satisfied smile that turned into a sneer. "What do you want?"

"I heard that you had Manon put in here and came to get her out—I did not know that you were the Provost." Fabien tried to control the hopeless feeling that surged over him.

"No one can get her out, she is to be deported!" The Count was enjoying his revenge.

"Deported!" exclaimed Fabien in horror. "Why? She has broken no laws."

"No?—Well, perhaps you and I have broken them for her, at least we have helped her break them; and the fact remains that she is to be deported this very morning. Come here!" he beckoned Fabien toward the window. "Do you see your fair mistress among the chain carriers?"

His hands went about the Count's throat.

Trembling with apprehension and anger, Fabien went to the window and looked down into the courtyard below. Three covered vans were backed up to the prison doors. The horses were strapped to the shafts waiting for the familiar whip crack that would start them on their long journey to the water front.

Eighteen women, some of them horrible creatures, dressed in the ugly prison garb, walked across the courtyard in a long line. They were herded together, one behind the other, with heavy chains that circled their waists and wrists, leaving only a few feet of slack between each one.

Presently Fabien distinguished Manon. Not even the wretchedness of her prison attire could hide her beauty, but her shoulders dropped and she attempted to hide her face in shame. Fabien knew that she did not belong to that order of the frail sisterhood where the Count had cast her as punishment for spurning his advances.

"In the name of God, stop them!" Fabien cried in anguish. His voice sounded unnatural and his face was livid.

"Why should I resort to so much trouble for you? If you want her—get her!" The Count indulged in a taunting laugh. He knew better than anyone else how impossible it would be for Fabien to ever enjoy Manon's society again. His revenge had been more complete than he anticipated. It was an unlooked for climax to have the favored lover witness his mistress's degradation.

"By God—I will get her! Fabien had again become a fighting demon.

The Count laughed at his boast and pointed out how impossible such a capture would be. He also dwelt at length upon the fact that no man or woman could ignore and insult him without suffering the consequences.

Fabien saw the wagons with the chained prisoners passing out of the grounds, and all the blood seemed to leave his heart as Manon disappeared.

Looking after them, through the light of the early morning sun, the Count remarked something about what a beautiful picture the caravan made. It was more than Fabien could endure. It had the effect of changing him into a madman. He sprang at the Count's throat and held it in a grip that was deadly. His face was convulsed with hatred and rage.

"You killed Manon's brother like the coward that you are! You have ruined her life! Isn't there any manhood in you? Come on—stand on your feet and fight for your life—if you want it!"

He released the Count's throat and stood back long enough for him to recover. Then they locked in a fierce struggle and rolled over and over on the floor. The Count's hand came in contact with a heavy iron bar and he was bringing it down with a smashing blow when Fabien worked himself free just in time to escape having his head crushed. Again Fabien attacked his victim, and this time he had no mercy. His hands went about the Count's throat and he shook him like a ferret does a rat. When he felt the body go limp in his grasp he straightened up in surprise. It seemed incredible that his slight hands had been strong enough to crush the life out of a man—for there was no doubt about the Count being dead. Nor was there any reason Fabien should lose valuable time regretting a thing that had been his self appointed duty.

The Count had killed Lescaut in a cowardly attack, he had insulted Manon beyond repair and sent her to a living death in the Colonies. Yes, he deserved his inglorious death and it was justice that Fabien should have been the one to avenge his friends.

Cautiously approaching the door he assured himself that the struggle had not been heard by the secretary or guard. All trace of the murder must be cleared away so that he could leave without being stopped and reach Manon before the tragedy had been discovered. With great effort he dragged the Count's body to the door and lifted it to a sitting position in the high backed chair. In one outstretched hand he placed a tall quill pen.

If anyone entered the door it would appear that the Count was busily engaged with his work. Satisfied with the arrangement Fabien devoted a few moments to making himself presentable then, opening the door—so that the Secretary could see him—turned back and said, as though speaking to the Count, "I shall see that you are not disturbed, Monsieur."

Fabien went out and closed the door. He longed to run through the corridor and follow Manon in her miserable caravan; but discretion cautioned him to linger and avert suspicion that might otherwise make him prisoner on the spot with no hope of ever seeing her again.

"Monsieur, is not in the best of moods," said Fabien as he paused at the secretary's desk with a friendly little warning. "You are fortunate that he prefers to be left alone." Then with an assumption of unconcern he sauntered out of the prison and began walking rapidly along the road to Havre. Every few steps he would look back, fearful that the murder had been discovered and a guard sent after him.

As the minutes passed and no one appeared, Fabien's walk quickened into a run and he pushed on in search of his loved one.

Since meeting Manon that Spring morning at the White Horse Inn, Fabien's path had been strewn with many obstacles; but the assurance of her love—in return for his own—made it easy and delightful.

He had gone through sorrow and suffering. He had stolen, or cheated at cards; it amounts to the same thing. He had given up his family, renounced his inheritance, insulted King and even committed murder. And now, Manon; his love, his very life, the one for whom he had done everything; was being taken away from him forever!

Heart sick, tired, lonely, frightened and even hungry, he stumbled along the dusty road with the hope that he could overtake Manon's caravan and hold her in his arms once more.

CHAPTER XX

"Who will care for my little Jean—my baby—my baby!" moaned the miserable young girl who was chained next to Manon in the cart. "Stop your howling!" snarled a hard faced woman from her place on the dirty straw that covered the bottom of the wagon. "Why didn't you think of the baby before you got it? Now shut up so I can enjoy the scenery." The woman laughed raucously. She was one of the group who, to use her own words: "Don't care a hang about being deported to America—men are just the same, no matter what side of the ocean they live on—besides a change of scene is stimulating."

Famous Huskies Go Into Training For International Dogsled Derby

I. N. S. Special Correspondent

QUEBEC, Feb. 17.—They are going to run the Sixth Eastern International Dogsled Derby, the big classic in dog marathons here on Feb. 20-21-22 over a hilly forty-mile circuit total elapsed time for the three days' racing to decide who gets the blue ribbon, $1,000 in cash, a silver cup and a leg on the big challenge trophy. So great is the interest already evident that drivers training their dogs are casting appraising eyes on every loose canine in the city with a view to improving a weak spot in the team.

Emile St. Goddard, of Le Pas, who will run again with Brydges and Shorty Russick, also of Le Pas, Manitoba, has two legs on the trophy and is alone in this respect, so that Sappala, the Alaskan who gained fame by running the antitoxin serum into Nome a few years ago to prevent the spread of an epidemic, Russick who holds the world's 200-mile non-stop record and the French-Canadian crowd here, will strain every muscle to keep St. Goddard from mushing home with the bacon. Channing of Boston, Walten of Wonalancet, N. H., and other New Englanders constitute the third faction to be reckoned with.

Old Winners On Hand

St. Goddard ran up a new record last year with a time of 11 hours, 37 minutes and 35 seconds or better than ten mile an hour including the hills while Sappala slid in 20 minutes and 20 seconds behind him for second prize. Cheverette, of Quebec, Paddy Nalan the 15-year-old musher, and Frank Dupuis, winner in 1926 took the remaining prizes.

Sappala has a nice string of huskies. St. Goddard has changed several of his dogs, while Russick who lost his two years ago with influenza has a team of tan pups which are the topic of conversation among the drivers. Russick recently lost his partner up in Cold Lake where he runs a trading post when McDonald went to cut grass on the lake and fell through the ice. Russick and his team brought the body into Le Pas covering more than 1,000 miles altogether.

The New England triangular 130 mile race starting from Wolfboro, N. H., to be run in four days is considered just a good preliminary to the Quebec classic and according to H. F. Sutton, Chicago sportsman who is sponsoring Russick, will determine whether Russick's huskies are fit for the big grind.

St. Goddard is eager to clinch the trophy but will not comment upon his possibilities. He is known as a brainy musher and two years ago he ran the course against a doctor's orders. Frank Dupuis is a lighthouse keeper on the St. Lawrence, his wife being recognized as the power behind the throne in training matters. Cheverette, another French-Canadian is an excitable but excellent musher, and young Paddy Nolan may this year surprise the spectators since he grabbed off fourth place over Dupuis last year.

Crowds on Hand

of highly excited residents will throng the course. A special veterinarian will examine all the dogs which also receive their dab of green paint behind the ear to prevent dandruff substitutions. Four feet of snow here at present is likely to remain which means hard going in the country. The tandem hitch will also be the most probable one by which each dog is hitched behind the leader. This will be considerable responsibility on the lead dogs which seem almost human in sagacity and which by threatening growls and bared teeth, keep the laggards at fighting pitch.

The growth of dogsled derbies in Canada and the United States has been rapid and attempts are being made to form an International Dogsled Protective Association to maintain the sport at a high standard. If this comes into being, a regular circuit will likely be established including Western Canada, the middle Northern States adjoining, Ontario, Quebec and New England. Meanwhile the question as to whether husky with a strain of wolf is a better all-round dog than the stag wolf and greyhounds, is unsettled.

British Firm Is Given Contract For Greatest Sluice Gates In World

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(INS)— The contract for the sluice gates for the Sukkur barrage, on the River Indus, the biggest of its kind in the world, has been placed by the India office with the firm of Ransome and Rapier, of Ipswich, England.

A metal gate, 60 feet wide and 18 feet, 6 inches deep will be fitted in each of the 66 spans of the barrage.

The Sukkur barrage will provide irrigation for 6,000,000 acres in the province of Sind. Seven canals will take off from the barrage, one of them, the Rohri canal with a length of 200 miles, being the largest of its type.

Each gate will weigh about 40 tons and the water load on it, when holding up to the full supply level will be 300 tons.

The girl heroically rescued Carl Williams, 14, when he fell through the ice while skating on Lake Susan. The girl dived under the ice several times in trying to reach the boy.

Helen of Troy ran away from her husband, and lived with another man.

After years of fighting, in which thousands were killed, the husband captured Helen and brought her back home.

The neighbors supposed his purpose was to boil her in oil. Instead, he forgave her, and again put her in charge of his home.

"Did Helen appreciate his mercy?" She certainly did not; she bossed her husband more cruelly than ever before, and made a fool of him on every possible occasion.

Some are like that; they regard forgiveness as license for still worse offending.

Our favorite meanness is to praise some things more than they deserve. Of every particularly successful man, it is said by his special enemies that his wife, or his head clerk, "made him."

The question has been raised what two men would do, who lived a solitary life in the wilds, and met each other for the first time. Pufendorf believed they would approach each other as friends; Hobbes, on the contrary, as enemies; Rousseau, that they would pass each other by in silence. . . . Pufendorf, of course, is right. Did not Robinson Crusoe welcome even Friday, a poor native who could not speak his language?

The critics are right; the people are an abused lot; and the critics are not any better than the rest of us.

There is no woman who gives us the radiant dreams that lurk beneath the word Woman; there is no wine that realizes the intoxication imagined by the word Wine; there is no perfume that our dearest nostrils find equal to the word Perfume; all is too little for the word All, and no nothingness is an empty enough vanity to be that arch-terrorist word Nothing.—Emile Tenenbaum.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

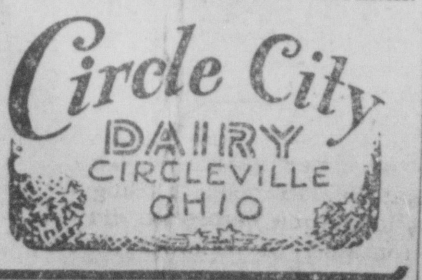

Matinee Friday 2 p. m.
Doors Open 1:45.

Each generation requires greater ability to be leaders of men. It requires greater preparation—clearer and more intellectual minds. This is acquired only by our boys and girls carefully selecting their diet—eating only such food as develops both mind and body. A quart of good pasteurized milk daily is one of the necessary requirements. In Circleville use Circle City Dairy's pasteurized milk—it retains its original flavor.

Party Friday Evening

The party to be given by the Juveniles of the Royal Neighbors of America at the Modern Woodman Hall, will be Friday evening at 7:30 instead of Saturday evening. The features of the evening will be a heart hunt, mending a broken heart, and "Bang." Dancing and refreshments are also on the program.

Entertain Friends

Miss Betty and Mary Gephart delightfully entertained a number of their friends to a Valentine Party, Tuesday evening, Feb. 14. Games and music were the diversions of the evening. Those present were: Miss Dorothy M. Glick, Marie Richey, Zelma Betts, Cynth Carothers, Ethyl Hussey, Margie Brown, Betty Jane Barnes, Mary Curtin, Cathryn Woollever, Ellen Reichelderfer, and the hostesses. At the conclusion of the games, dainty refreshments were served.

Birthdays Celebrated

Mrs. Gilbert Starkey, who was hostess to the eight members of her bridge club at her home on Watt street, Wednesday evening, shared honors with Mrs. Lee Dimond in the birthday surprise party given to them by other members of the club. Special refreshments consisting of a two course luncheon were served by the club members.

At University Club

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Criswell, of the Boggs, attended a special dinner party at the University Club at Columbus, Wednesday evening. The party was composed of Yale University Law Classmates of Mr. Criswell's.

Attends Benefit Bridge

Mrs. James S. Swearingen, of Jackson township, went to Columbus, on Friday, where she will attend a benefit bridge at the Kappa Sigma sorority house.

Parties for the Opera

A number of parties from Circleville have been planned to attend one or more performances of the Civic Grand Opera Company at the Columbus auditorium, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The majority have chosen to hear Rosa Raisa in "Aida," on Monday, but Mary Garden in "Resurrection," Tuesday night will no doubt be very popular. The tenebrous "La Traviata," with Claudia Muzio as Violetta on Wednesday night will always be a favorite.

On Monday night a party composed of Dr. and Mrs. D. V. Court-right, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Groce and Mrs. Ligar Barrere will motor to Columbus to hear "Aida." Another party will be Mrs. Turney Ruggles, Mrs. Joseph Adkins, Miss Abbe Clarke, Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, Miss Helen Marion, Miss Martha Moore and Miss Miriam Ruggles. Mr. and Mrs. Clark Will and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rieffer are planning to go together. Mrs. John Goeller, Jr., Mrs. George Crites and Miss Martha Mary Jacob will also hear the opera on Monday night.

The Chicago opera aggregation will arrive in Columbus soon with its trunks of many colors—those containing the men's costumes will be marked by a red stripe, and the women's with white. Costumes for the "supers" of which there are 200 in "Aida" for example, are separately packed. All props are shipped in green trunks, the electrical fixtures in red, and the armor in brown. It is impossible by virtue of this system to unpack

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Meinhard Crites have returned from a motor trip to Huntington and Charleston, West Virginia.

Mrs. Donald Morris, of Kingsport, Tenn., who has been a guest at the home of her mother, Mrs. Olive Marfield in Columbus, is visiting her aunts, Miss Mary and Miss Harriett Marfield, on East Main street.

Mrs. Dale Kitzmiller, who has been visiting with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones of Park Place, has gone to New York City, where she has accepted a position.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Spencer of Tarleton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dill, of Lockbourne, Thursday.

Miss Alice Ada May, who is a student at Goucher College in Baltimore, Maryland, is spending the week-end at home with her grandmother, Mrs. Alice A. Hosler. Miss May is recovering from a recent severe illness.

Mr. Ed. Ferrel and family of East Union Street will move back to Canal Winchester in a short time. They lived in the duplex of Miss Elizabeth Renick.

Miss Mary Parcells, of Columbus, has returned to Circleville, and at present is residing with Miss Mattie Ebert of North Court street. Miss Parcells expects to engage in nursing.

Seats for the performances can be procured in the lobby of the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Party in Columbus

The cozy home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Gildersleeve, of 167 East Lincoln Street, Columbus, was the scene of a happy gathering of friends and relatives on the evening of Feb. 6. The occasion was Mr. Gildersleeve's birthday, and was secretly planned by his wife. He was completely surprised when all of his friends rushed in to congratulate him.

The evening was spent in euche, bridge, music and conversation, and at 11:30, Mrs. Gildersleeve served refreshments to the guests. Those who enjoyed the delightful hospitality were: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Gildersleeve, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gildersleeve and children, Roselyn, and Paul, Mrs. Marcella Spillman and baby son, Lloyd, Miss Mae Gildersleeve, Miss Lelia Gildersleeve, Grace Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. statement soak in and let no one kid himself into believing that his popularity among a certain class will win, for that is absolutely wrong.

The candidates who have entered the big campaign and who will enter the fight for prizes will be printed next Saturday, then the campaign will have begun in dead earnest. Friends of the candidates will be glad to subscribe and re-subscribe when they see who is to participate in the race. Their names and the votes due them will be printed on that day templating getting into the campaign to send or bring their names in before Saturday noon, so it may appear in Saturday evening's Herald. It will be a distinct advantage to have your name in the first published list. So bring it in at once, get a receipt book and get busy right away—that is the best way to win.

You can enter the campaign next the proper time to get started, while the field is fresh and subscriptions are very easy to get. The prizes will be won by someone during their spare time, that is a certain fact, for now-days people who do things, who get ahead in life's battles, are busy with regular duties, and will find time to handle their subscription campaign at the same time.

You who have entered and are working, and you who will enter today, bear in mind that triple votes are given for every subscription up until next Friday. This is your best chance to roll together several hundred thousand votes and the advice of the writer is simply, to get busy and stay busy, make as big a report as possible Friday of next week.

ROBERT LEE'S QUINTET TROUNCES C. A. C. TEAM

LAST CONTEST OF SEASON IS VERY UNEQUAL

Local Players Fight Gamely But In Vain Against Powerful Columbus Crew.

In the last game of the season, the C. A. C. quintet took on overwhelming defeat from Robert Lee's Hubdashes, by a 56 to 30 score here Thursday night.

While the C. A. C. boys worked hard enough, it cannot be denied they were completely outclassed, both in floor work and basket shooting, yet they must have much deserved credit for the fight they displayed, and it must be said that they went down struggling to stop the onslaught of the visitors.

The game was started by Gatrell scoring a free throw for the first part of the contest, which, however, was soon followed by a field goal by Bill Hunt. The first quarter was the thriller of the game, with first one team then the other scoring, and that the fans on their feet every minute. But after the visitors got going the club was powerless to stop them, and at the half, they were on the long end of a 29 to 18 score.

At no time during the latter part of the game were they in danger. The club boys fought hard throughout the game, making every effort humanly possible for a small team to stop a big team, and the visitors had some capable boys with them.

4 FLOOR GAMES ARE CARDED AT ATHLETIC CLUB

game of the evening, Jackson girls, with their size, should be able to take care of Williamsport, but they must fight. This game should be close and hard fought.

Play will be resumed Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock, with Muhlenberg and Walnut boys on the floor. Both teams have enviable records this year, and the game promises to be hard fought and fast, the winner probably meeting the strong New Holland team in the second round. The two teams have not met this year, and go in to the game, fighting to win. The outcome cannot be predicted safely. Both are fighting aggregations, and should provide a real scrap.

Girls To Battle

In the only girls game of the morning, Muhlenberg meets New Holland. Muhlenberg, while not as strong as last year, promises a fight. New Holland is always ready for a real battle, so this should be a good exhibition.

The Deercreek (Williamsport) boys meet the Monroe boys in the last game of the morning session. Deercreek has a victory to its credit over Monroe earlier in the season, but reports from the northwest indicate that they have improved so much that they may be considered championship timber. The game promises to be fast, and its result may determine the winner of the lower half of the schedule, which meets the conqueror of the upper half in the finals.

In the first game of Saturday afternoon, the Pickaway girls have lost only one game, and that by a few points to the Walnut maids, meet the Perry township girls. Early in the season these two teams met, and the Pickaway girls had little trouble in winning. They should repeat.

Pick New Holland

Last years boys' champions, with practically the whole team intact, will play its first tournament game with Jackson, next. New Holland should easily defeat the Jackson boys without much effort.

In the last game of the afternoon, Washington and Ashville girls will play. Washington girls have been playing excellent basketball, while the record of Ashville is also very good. This game should be a real scrap with perhaps Ashville having the edge.

Atlanta boys, who are real championship contenders and conceded by many to have the best chance of defeating New Holland, open the second round of the tournament with the winner of Washington and Scioto game. This should be a runaway game for them, as they have already defeated Scioto by some 30 points. The Atlanta team is small but speedy, and excellent passers. They have received only one defeat during the season.

Champions Intact

Monroe and Scioto girls tie up for the last game of the first round of the girls' schedule. Monroe is conceded to be the real title contenders this year, and like the New Holland boys, they have their last years' championship team practically intact.

In the third game of this season Saltcreek, who drew a bye, will meet the winner of the Ashville-Darby game which will probably be Ashville. Saltcreek has defeated Ashville at Ashville this year, but with the improvement that the Ashville team has shown lately the results may be different. At least a real fight is expected, with Hartman working hard for Saltcreek, and Cloud doing the same for Ashville.

The winners of the Walnut-Saltcreek game will meet the winners of the Deercreek-Jackson game in the last game of this week's games. Walnut should

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

A sensible solution to the difficulty of finding a logical opponent for Gene Tunney would be to have the champion fight each of the contenders.

One fight a month should keep the heavyweight titleholder in condition and funds.

There is nothing silly about the suggestion. In the old days, Tunney would have had to do that very thing, or he wouldn't have been recognized as champion. Any fighter who could get the necessary backing could challenge for the title, and the champion either fought or was branded as afraid.

Nowadays, a champion laughs when he is accused of being afraid. He knows the public will overlook his running away from dangerous opponents if he provides the glamor of a title fight with a "set-up."

Take Gene Tunney's case. Would he fight George Godfrey, for example? Certainly not. Moreover, he would have no shame in evading a match with the negro. And he would go somewhere and fight Jack Dempsey, the easiest kind of a push-over for him, a third time. And then talk over the radio about uplifting the sport of boxing and about what it can do for the youth of today.

It is fortunate that the youth of today is too busy to develop perception. There are six prominent contenders for Tunney's title: Godfrey, Paulino Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko.

Instead of trying to figure out which of the lot can help earn him $1,000,000 for 30 minutes' work, what would be more reasonable than for Gene himself to decide which of the challengers he would like to fight first, and proceed to do so? Then, if still champion, he could take on the next one, and so on, down the line, until the name of Tunney became a by-word for the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and not for that of a rather bored student of Shakespeare.

There is, of course, an essential difference between a champion of today and yesterday. In by-gone days, a man was heavyweight champion of the world because he liked to be, because he was a fighter, and chose to storm and swagger through the speak loudies of his period. Nowadays, why is a heavyweight champion? Perhaps my occasional correspondent, Mr. J. Carupa, of Harrisburg, Pa., can furnish the answer.

With these few unkind words about Gene Tunney's good intentions, I must now go on record as being firmly convinced that the heavyweight champion could go through with a program of one fight a month against his more dangerous challengers and whip them all with comparative ease.

Tunney would knock Godfrey's head off within a few rounds, and Lieperville would join Harlem in the limbo of discarded haunts of black menaces. Gene would beat Delaney with an ease which would distress the idlers of the Bridgeport boxer. The champion could whip Risko and Heeney in the same evening.

What then of Sharkey and Paulino? In a long fight, the latter would give the titleholder plenty of trouble. In a short fight, limited to six rounds or so, Sharkey would do the same. By choosing his distance carefully, I think Tunney could make Sharkey quit and outpoint Paulino.

Then there would be less derision in the voices of those who have come out the winner, but most anything can happen in tournaments.

Prepare Summary

A general summary of expected results will appear before the games which will be resumed next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The upper bracket in the boys' games seem to contain the harder teams, with New Holland, Atlanta, Darbyville, and Walnut the chief contenders. The lower bracket is made up of teams which are more evenly matched, with no one team having a decided advantage over the others. In the girls' teams, Monroe seems to be the favorite, with Walnut and Pickaway a close second. Walnut is in the upper bracket which seems to be the easiest, for should Monroe win her preliminary games, and Pickaway do the same, these two teams would have to meet in the semi-finals.

Two large loving cups are to be awarded at the close of the tournament; one to the winner of the boys and the others to the winner of the girls. Before they go to any one school, 23 real scraps will have to be fought. May the best teams win them.

TIGERS PLAY HILLSBORO AT GYM TONIGHT

Circleville Basketeers Hope to Get Revenge For Early Season Defeat.

The Circleville high school Tigers have been sharpening their teeth and smoothing their whiskers all week in anticipation of the Hillsboro-Circleville tilt Friday evening in the high school gym.

A few weeks ago Hillsboro caught the Tigers napping, and before they had both eyes open, they discovered they were beaten, 19 to 14.

The team has different plans for Friday night, and maybe it will be too bad for Hillsboro. Pickens will start at center, Bales and Davis forwards, and Peters and Marion, guards. Baseman of Columbus will be the referee.

The girls' team will play Bliss College, and this will be the last opportunity to see Fay Puckett on the home court. The girls' team has played all season with plenty of action, and they have become one of the big drawing cards.

The Red "O.K." Tag Protects Your Purchase

After we have thoroughly reconditioned a used car, we attach a red "O.K." tag to the radiator. This tag is the purchaser's guarantee of quality and value—for it shows exactly what mechanical conditioning the car has had.

When you purchase a used car, let this tag eliminate all uncertainty and "guess-work" for you.

Our used car department is showing a wide selection of "O.K.'d" used cars at this time—every one an outstanding value. Come in and see them.

Pudding Is "Detoured"

The minister had a boyish habit of visiting the pantry after the cook's departure and devouring all surplus sweets. One morning after a night's invasion of the pantry the cook asked her mistress: "What you all want for dessert for dinner?" "I think the date pudding left from yesterday will be sufficient for today," said the thrifty wife. "That pudding's been detoured by that meddlin' husband," was the irritated reply.—Indianapolis News.

Roberta Knew

Roberta, aged four, had been told by her grandmother she would wear her tongue out, if she did not stop talking so much. Coming in one day from playing, the child excitedly told her grandmother that she had just seen a woman who had worn her tongue out.
Grandmother asked her how she could tell and she said: "The woman was talking on her fingers."
Grandmother figured out that the little girl had seen some deaf and dumb persons.—Indianapolis News.

Fat Men Stand Heat Best

Fat men can stand high temperatures better than thin ones, according to tests made by the bureau of mines. The fat men lost more weight but were less exhausted after the experiments were over, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The trials revealed that high pulse rate rather than the mere increase in bodily temperature is the important factor that brings discomfort under high heat and humidity.

And the Worst is Yet to Come

"Orientation" Courses
Just as in psychology, orientation signifies an adjustment of the organism to its environment, so in education an orientation course is introduced to adjust the student to his educational environment and enable him to determine his bearings. Columbia university instituted the orientation courses for freshmen, and such courses are offered at Amherst, Antioch, Brown, Dartmouth, Johns Hopkins, Leland Stanford, Missouri, Princeton, Rutgers, Williams, and other universities.
Ornithological Term
The term "chatterer" was formerly applied to the waxwings and some related birds with little applicability. It is now, with more or less propriety, restricted by ornithologists to the South American passerine family Cotingidae, which may be better called "cotingas."
What of It?
Modern women weep less, but what of it? A kid never cries after it gets the candy.—San Francisco Chronicle.

To Prevent Vermin on Sheep During Winter

To prevent lice from infesting sheep in winter it is advisable to dip the animals in autumn. A solution of any standard coal-tar dip will suffice for the purpose, if used strictly according to the instructions given by the manufacturer. Then the dipped sheep should be kept out of houses and pens that have not been scrupulously cleaned, disinfected and whitewashed for their reception.
Afterward be careful not to introduce new sheep that have not been treated for destruction of lice. Ticks are even more annoying and the same treatment gets rid of them. The dipping, however, should be done shortly after shearing, including the lambs, when the ticks from the adult sheep have migrated to them, and should be repeated in autumn, before the weather becomes too cold.

Give Sow Proper Care After Birth of Pigs

A good house does not end the hog man's responsibility to the brood sow. Be sure that none of the feed given immediately after farrowing is sour or moldy. Better yet, give nothing but clean, cool water for the first 24 hours, or, at most, a thin slop. Gradually get the sow back on full feed in ten days to two weeks.
Lack of protein, such as milk and tankage, in the ration is one, though not the most prevalent, of the causes for sows eating their pigs. A more frequent reason, specialists find, is a feverish condition of the sow. This may be due to several things, among them overfeeding, particularly of corn; the quarters may be too cold and draughty; or there may be digestive disturbances.

Mortality Among Colts

In the case of horses the fact that in this country they are usually handled in large numbers only in parts of the West where conditions are not so favorable for parasites as they are in the Midwest, South and East may simplify the control of mortality among colts. With only a few horses on a farm, pasture rotation, and control measures are feasible. Specific measures for the control of infectious joint disease and related conditions will be necessary.

Sure to Be Evil

The evil that men do lives after them, says the bard of Avon. And if there isn't any, the biographer will invent some.

In Case of Fire

Children should be taught plain facts concerning fire dangers. Impress upon them the folly of running about if their clothing is on fire. Teach them that it is better to smother the flames with a rug or quilt rather than fan the flames and spread them all over the body.

What Then?

Children aren't bothered with pyorrhea, says a physician. Aren't they? Suppose the poor youngsters have to spell it?

5,000 Soul Village, Close By Richest Copper Mine, Is Slipping Into Valley

By THOMAS R. CURRAN
JEROME, Ariz. Feb. 17—(UP)
U. P. Staff Correspondent
—Built over a giant earth fault, this Arizona town of some 5,000 inhabitants is slowly slipping into the valleys surrounding the world's richest copper mine.

Jerome is perched on the side of a huge ore-laden hill, 35 miles from Prescott. The business building and the workers' houses cling tenaciously to the slope. Main street is a mountain road circling the hill.

Some time ago a pronounced slip was noticed. Cracks appeared in office buildings; streets buckled and rose.

Then a church toppled down. The roof fell, the walls tumbled and the floor caved in. Fortunately, no worshippers were caught in the crash, as services had been discontinued when the slow working menace first appeared.

The Verde Copper Company, whose copper catacombs make the town possible, brought in geologists and engineers to study the problem. They found a huge earth fault cut diagonally across the town.

The fault stretched below a number of important buildings, including the church which had collapsed. The town hospital, it was discovered, was partly over the fault, endangering the lives of patients in that section of the building.

The copper company ordered the menaced portion of the hospital wrecked, the remainder was left whole and was used for other purposes. A new hospital was built.

Ten or more downtown buildings and residences have been officially condemned. Others are menaced. Visitors plainly see the jagged irregular cracks in the brick and concrete office structures, and the ominous bulge in walls and street.

The natives themselves, however, like the happy-hearted Italian villagers living near Vesuvius, give scarcely a thought to the ever-present peril.

Nevertheless, Jerome eventually must move. It may be a year, it may be five, but sooner or later the yawning hole beneath will swallow up the town. Publicly geologists minimize the danger. They are unwilling to alarm the residents needlessly. Secretly, however, they admit that the town site is hopeless and that some day the workers and business men must move to another hillside or down into the sheltered security of Deception Gulch.

Meanwhile, a slight earthquake or a heavy fall of rain may bring on a catastrophe that would rock the world.

Here's Milkman Who Fought Mighty John D.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER AND (inset) JOHN J. FOLEY

If you were looking around the world for opponents, you'd hardly pick on John D. Rockefeller as an easy one. Yet that's what happened when the late Michael Foley girded his loins for battle in the pretty environs of Pocomtuck Hills, N. Y.

And after he died, his son, John J., continued the fight, which was over the closing of a cross-country road. For more than 25 years an dispute raged. Foley had battled tooth and nail against the closing of that road, and passed on the heritage to the son, who continued the fight as long as Foley could.

Then one day, by chance, the younger Foley, a milkman, happened to be driving through the Rockefeller estate and encountered John D., Jr. They talked things over, shook hands and agreed to arbitrate. Which they did.

Says Milkman Foley: "I never did business with a finer fellow than Mr. Rockefeller."

Thus ended another "war."

New Under Things, Flowing Tea Gowns Fragile and Airy, Shown at Florida Shops

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17—(UP)—The air confections which underlie the dainty gowns worn by day and evening seem to be approaching the vanishing point. That is, except in price.

So saving in lingerie has the smartly-gowned maid and matron of the winter colony become that here in one garment, which is called a three-in-one, are combined the duties of a brassiere, teddies and a slip.

This fragile thing is constructed of indestructible voile, so-called, in a pastel shade of blue, with embroidery and lace trim. It is designed for use with extremely low cut dance and evening frocks, and hence has practically no back at all. The nether part replaces teddies and the lace and voile waistette does duty as a brassiere.

It is hardly more tangible than the breeze which gently swishes the fronds of the palms, but the smart saleswoman will tell you it retails for fifty dollars and not bluish as she says it.

Then here is a teddy in satin peach, with French lace and ecru. The price? Oh, sixty dollars.

Leaving the boudoir a little distance behind, the style explorer finds that tea gowns, in which the hostess may entertain her feminine friends at tea, say, have a charm built on soft flowing lines and lace and silver trim, the metallic adornments being so lacy and light that they are quite in keeping with the daintiness of the gown.

These gowns have flowing chiffon sleeves and a fish tail train, as long but not as heavy as a

Berlin Jazz Palace Is Being Built By State To Aid Prussian Purse

PRUSSIA, Feb. 17 — (INS) — Anticipating more revenues from the pockets of jazz lovers than from admirers of serious art, the Prussian ministry of finances is erecting the largest dancing palace of Berlin near one of the two Berlin State operas, on state ground.

The new dancing hall, which has been under construction for a year will seat 5,000 guests and promises to become the most brilliant entertainment and amusement place in the German capital.

The financing of a "gaiety place" by the Prussian authorities has invited sharp criticism on the part of artists and lovers of "respectable" music. It is said that while the Prussian ministry of finances throws out a couple of million marks for the erection of a dancing hall there is no money left for real art. Rehearsals of the State opera ensemble have to be held in a wooden hut in the midst of a public park, because there is no proper room in the opera house and the stage is not always available for rehearsals.

Rural Mail Delivery

The standard rural mail delivery service route is 24 miles. For this route the salary is $1,800 a year. An additional $30 a month is added for every mile over the 24. An equipment allowance of 4 cents a mile is also given. Routes under the standard number of miles are graded accordingly.

H. M. BOWMAN DIES WHEN HE TOUCHES WIRE

Fatal Accident Occurs While Victim Is Working Near Williamsport.

Horton M. Bowman, 29, a linesman employed by the Scioto Valley Railway and Power company, was killed instantly at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he came into contact with a 66,000 volt wire while at work on a pole four miles south of Williamsport on the Williamsport-Clarksburg road. The fatal accident occurred while Bowman was engaged in making the last connection to a new transformer which had been placed on the pole. He was watching the high powered wire on which he was working and apparently forgot the other two power lines.

ASHVILLE MAN BADLY INJURED IN WRECK HERE

John Baker Hurt When His Auto Is Side-Swiped By Another Machine.

John Baker, of Ashville, was seriously injured Thursday evening about 9 o'clock on North Court street, when the Ford coupe in which he was riding was side-swiped by a Chevrolet sedan as it came out of Ringgold pike. In the mix-up the car driven by Mr. Baker was shoved into an Oldsmobile owned by the Rev. Asa E. Elsen, which was parked in front of the Berger home, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Leist.

The injuries to Mr. Baker have not been fully determined. Dr. Howard Jones is giving him medical attention. He has a deep cut close to his spine near the hip and through the night he had several relapses. It is thought that he may be injured internally. The car in which Mr. Baker drove is a complete wreck. It was brought in by the Circleville Motors company for repairs.

The Albaugh company removed Mr. Baker to the home of his brother-in-law, Nolan Sims, on Pleasant street.

The name of the owner of the Chevrolet sedan that ran into Mr. Baker's car has not been obtained but it is thought that the police department will locate the driver. The near tragedy was the forerunner of a social affair that was scheduled for the evening. Mr. Baker's wife and daughter were at the home of his brother-in-law Nolan Sims, to attend a party at the home on Pleasant street, and Mr. Baker was coming down from Ashville to attend the party when he met with the accident.

This is not the first accident at the intersection of Ringgold pike and North Court street as quite a number have occurred there.

The Scioto trail is a main market and federal road, and traffic is supposed to stop before entering on it.

Capacity Crowd Sees Fight Film; State Officer of Eagles Speaks

Golden Rule Cardinal Principal Of Order, Armory Audi- ence Is Told.

A capacity crowd witnessed the showing of the motion pictures of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago last fall at the Armory in Circleville Thursday night. The pictures, owned by the Columbus lodge of Eagles, were shown here under the auspices of the Circleville Aerie of the fraternal order.

The pictures of the fight were excellent, giving close-up and distant views of the action as well as slow motion reproduction of the famous seventh round when Tunney received the benefit of an extra long count.

The screening of pictures was preceded by a brief address by Ralph Bartlett, of Columbus, state vice president of the Fraternal order of Eagles. Insisting that the very basis of the lodge is founded upon the Golden Rule, Mr. Bartlett said:

"Doing unto others constitutes a great part of the activities of the human race. The test appears in the family, the community, and the state. What this to do and how to do it has been the problem of the ages. In the unbending law of evolution, the law of the survival of the fittest, it appears to be destruction of others. The principle that 'self-preservation is the first law of nature,' seems to have ingrained selfishness into the very being of mankind—each for himself alone was the impelling thought of primitive man.

It rises in the Hardin county marshes, west of Kenton.

And for over this half century, "Dude" who tells me he is on his way to his 71st birthday, has fished, hunted, trapped and boated his way up this river, until now it has come to be his old friend and he watches over it jealously in his

"FLINT" AVERS RIGHT NAME IS WALTER BROWN

Defendant Testifies He Never Saw Slain Man After Debt Was Settled.

(EDITOR'S NOTE.—James Flint, as he has been called, alias Walter Brown, of Circleville, held for murder, declared in court Thursday that his real name was Walter Brown. Henceforth this newspaper will refer to Brown by his correct name in future stories on the case.)

The defense rested its case Friday in the trial of Walter Brown, charged with the shooting and killing of John Henry Hill on the night of Nov. 14, 1927, and the case, after final arguments on Monday, is likely to go to the jury in Pickaway county common pleas court on Monday night or Tuesday morning at the latest.

Then will Brown know the fate that will be his, whether he will go free, or to prison, or last—the electric chair!

Several witnesses were to be heard Friday afternoon and final arguments will not likely start until Monday, as court is not held on Saturday.

Explains Movements

Brown, testifying in his own behalf late Thursday afternoon, attempted to explain his movements on Nov. 13, the day previous to the murder, declaring he had been in Chillicothe then. On the sixth of the same month he said he got a gun from one of the men in the railroad camp where the murder took place, merely to keep it for him. This was the gun Mrs. Turner and Mr. Morgan two other witnesses, saw a week prior to the slaying. Brown said the man owned the gun was known to him only as "Red."

The defendant declared he saw Hill near Caskey's in the south end of the city about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon on the day of the fatal shooting and that Hill paid him $4 of the $7 he owed him. Brown claimed that he never saw Hill after that. Later in the afternoon he joined a crap game near the Pennsylvania railroad but it broke up later and he walked back to Court street with Ed Lowe intending to go to Caskey's again, but Mallet, who is said to be intoxicated, bothered him and they got in an automobile, drove down the road a distance, and walked back. He said he then went to Turner's later had supper (Continued on Page Two)

Hesitation May Forfeit Valuable Prize in Big Campaign of Herald

Steady Work During Spare Time Is Best Method of Operation in Obtaining Subscriptions—Candidates Now Entered Should See Drive Manager.

It is one of the most common traits found in human nature to go along the same rut and look with a feeling of apprehension upon anything distinctively new. The easiest way is to keep to the beaten track by sticking to the same old routine of life. Nowhere in the world does anyone get ahead by passing up opportunities. When the golden chance is offered the individual who really wants something, admits his ability to take advantage of it. Leaders of today are simply the people of yesterday who saw their chance and took advantage of it without hesitation.

A fact peculiar to subscription campaigns when conducted in a large and liberal manner such as the present Herald's drive, is that many people are delighted with the idea, think it a great and wonderful thing, but regard it as impossible for "me to win." Emphatically, the grand prize can be won by anyone now entered, and will be won by the liveliest hustler who goes in with the idea of winning and remains in the fight throughout the campaign. Some one, now busy, will see the wonderful chance lying right here at home and grasp it. Little things will not be permitted to interfere with the winning of the big prize, they will devote all energies possible during their spare time to the campaign and will win. That person will be successful.

It's the person with the "punch" that wins in any competition and this campaign is no exception to the rule. It has been said that the present subscription campaign is what is known as a popularity contest. Let it be distinctly understood here and now and for all time that that statement is absolutely false and anyone making such an assertion is prompted by a malicious attempt to belittle such a venture or else it is complete ignorance of the entire proposition. Popularity contests are a thing of the past. They are not used any more by progressive newspapers. They were put on many years ago and were in a measure successful, but like the silver knee buckle and the powdered wig, have long since passed in the discard. This campaign is not a popularity contest, or a luck contest, but a plain business proposition, whereby valuable prizes are given for votes on subscriptions and those votes are obtained only by hard and consistent work. Popularity will count for naught in this campaign. It is what is known as a salesmanship club campaign and the results are profit sharing. No one can hope to land a prize without doing tall hustling. The rewards are ample to repay anyone for his time and work. The best hustler will win that's clearly evident. Let that (Concluded on Page Five)

OFFICER SEEKS EXTRADITION OF CITY NATIVE

Circleville Resident Also Held in Robbery of Greene County Dentist.

Leroy Reeser, 29, of South Clinton street, Circleville, under arrest at Xenia on a charge of robbery, is now charged with murder and his extradition to Alabama is being sought by a detective from Birmingham.

According to the Columbus police, the identification of Reeser as being implicated in the death of Mrs. Lucy Leahy at Birmingham, Ala., was made by Detective Marvin Garver of the southern city who arrived in Xenia late Thursday.

Mrs. Leahy was strangled to death and robbed of $175 and a diamond ring. The woman's body was discovered three days after the robbery when neighbors investigated a gas odor coming from her apartment. The ring later was found at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Caught After Chase
Reeser with a companion who registered as Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, was arrested Tuesday at Waynesville, Warren county, after a chase from Spring Valley, where they are said to have been surprised while rifling the office of Dr. A. N. Vaneidman. Dental gold and platinum and narcotics are said to have been found in possession of the men when they were searched.

Green county authorities placed a charge of robbery against Reeser and Sheridan.

In Court Here
As a lad of 13 years of age he was warranted into probate court here on the charge of burglary, and larceny and was made a ward of the court by the late Judge A. R. Van Cleaf, at that time publisher of The Circleville Democrat and Watchman. Reeser was placed under the Probation officer until he was 21 years of age. This is the only criminal record the young man had in Circleville. He disappeared from the city and joined the Regular Army in which he remained until the World's war when at Camp Mills, N. Y., he was assigned to Circleville's Co. F, of the 166th Regiment "Rainbow" Division. Since his discharge from the service his whereabouts are unknown. After the death of his father his mother married Harley Funk who now is a resident of the southern portion of the city.

PICKAWAY SEEN AS CENTER OF GARDEN TRUCK

Alonzo Marion Tells Rotary Club of Possibilities In Vegetable Growing.

The Rotary club at its weekly meeting, Thursday noon at the Boggs hotel, listened to a very interesting talk on the "Acres of Diamonds of the Scioto Valley." Alonzo Marion, well versed in the growing of early vegetables, told of the possibilities of Circleville becoming one of the largest shipping centers of farm produce to the markets of the northern cities.

Pickaway county is ideally located to become a center of growing early vegetables and the overnight service to the millions of people in the cities of northern Ohio and Michigan will play a great part in some day making this a reality.

This can best be accomplished by corporation farming instead of co-operative farming and in this way the packing, shipping and selling these products can be best attained.

The farmers of today are getting better acquainted with keeping proper records to put farming on a business like basis. Machinery is playing a big part in successful farming of today and with business methods and proper accounting of their farm records, the farmers of the present day can realize better results from their land, Mr. Marion said.

The winners of the club work in Pickaway county will be entertained by the Rotary club on Thursday, Feb. 23. This meeting will be held at the Parish House at 11:30 o'clock and with Judge Harley Whitcraft as the speaker the members and guests are assured of hearing from a man of rare ability.

Revenue Men to Aid In Income Tax Work

Prussia Sues Kaiser For $200,000 Claimed Overpaid on Allowance

BERLIN, Feb. 17 — (INS) — The state of Prussia is suing its former ruler, Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm for nearly $200,000.

The case will be decided by an arbitration court consisting of a representative of Prussia, a representative of the former kaiser, and a neutral.

When after the revolution of 1918, Prussia seized all of its de-throned ruler's possessions, it allotted to the imperial family 50,000 marks a month to live on, pending final settlement of the property question.

In 1926, following a national referendum election in which a proposal to confiscate these properties without compensation had been rejected, Prussia returned half of the seized estates to the kaiser by mutual agreement. Now Prussia claims that Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm should also return to its half of the annuities, minus the loans floated to pay it. The half amounts to 471,000 marks.

JACKSON TO MAKE DEFENSE PUBLIC

Because of the governor's pleading the statute of limitations, the trial was halted yesterday the seventh day of the trial, by Special Judge Charles M. McCabe before the defense had offered any testimony.

HICKMAN WANTS TO TAKE STAND

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 17 — (INS)—William Edward Hickman's desire to appear in his own defense has not deserted him.

This was evident today when it was learned that the convicted kidnaper-slayer of Marion Parker has informed his attorneys that he wants to testify at the trial now in session, in which he and his 16-year-old accomplice, Welby Hunt, are charged with the murder of C. Ivy Thoms during a drug store holdup.

TREES CONCEAL BODIES OF TWO SLAIN OFFICERS

Systematic Search Started For Escaped Prisoners Who Killed Deputies.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 — (INS) — With the fate of John P. Grove and Wallace McClure, Indiana deputy sheriffs, definitely established, a systematic hunt for the slayers was being organized here today.

The bodies of the two Tippecanoe county officers were found late yesterday in a thick woods near Covington, Ind., by Charles Abdill, a farmer. The officers had been missing since Feb. 7, when they left Lafayette with two prisoners, Sam Baxter and John Burns, for the Pendleton state reformatory.

Baxter and Burns were Lafayette youths who had been "sent up" for robbery, are being sought for the murders.

The quartet left Lafayette in Grove's automobile ten days ago and that was the last seen of any of the party until the deputies' bodies were stumbled over by Farmer Abdill. They were covered with an auto robe.

A wound in the back of Grove's head indicated he had been struck from the rear by a heavy blunt instrument. McClure's neck was broken. When the party left Lafayette, the deputies were riding in the front seat and the convicts occupied the rear seat manacled together by a single handcuff.

Court News FUGITIVE ARRESTED BY DEPUTY PORTER

H. M. BOWMAN DIES WHEN HE TOUCHES WIRE

Brought to Ground
On the ground, waiting for him to complete connection, were three fellow workmen; R. F. Brown and Albert Watson, of Circleville, and Charles Ater, of Clarksburg.

Seeing Bowman slump in his belt, Brown climbed the pole and brought him to the ground. Bowman breathed only once after Brown reached him and his body was taken into the home of Frank Carter in front of which the tragedy occurred.

Dr. G. D. Sheets, of Williamsport, was summoned and acted as coroner for Dr. O. H. Dutton.

Brown notified, George Seall, foreman of the Scioto Valley line-men, and he called M. S. Rinehart, Circleville funeral director, to take charge of the body.

First Death Since 1920

The death of Bowman was the first fatality among the Scioto valley line-men in this county since Curtiss Shellenbarger was electrocuted in 1920 a half mile south of Circleville.

Bowman was an overseas veteran of the World war, serving during the conflict as a sergeant in Company B of the 28th Infantry.

He was the son of Frank and Ida Shannon Bowman, of Canal Winchester. He was born in Duval, O., on Nov. 2, 1898. He was a farmer until he entered the army and while at Camp Dix, N. J., he met Pauline Carson whom he married at Mt. Holly, N. J., on August 31, 1920.

Rites to be Sunday

The accident victim is survived by his parents; his widow, who resides at 217 East Union street, and two sisters; Mrs. Harry Steimen and Mrs. Leslie Smith, both of Canal Winchester.

The body was taken to the home of the parents in Canal Winchester on Friday afternoon by Mr. Rinehart.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Sunday at the M. E. church in Canal Winchester of which he was a member. Rev. Mr. Bailey officiating. Burial will be in the cemetery at Lithopolis, O. Fellow employees of the Scioto Valley Railway and Power company will act as pallbearers.

He fixed the time of this by the statement that he looked at his watch to see if Byrd's clock was correct and that it was then 18 minutes to 6 o'clock.

Brown testified that from then on he was never out of the house until the sheriff called for him.

His story was identical with that of the Byrds and Whittington's, on this point, and the state on cross-examination, failed to shake his testimony materially.

Brown declared he was in bed when all the commotion was going on after the discovery of the body and the crime. He was tired from loss of sleep, he explained, and had slept through part of it. He also stated that Charles Byrd had advised him not to go out as they were accusing him of murder, and being down at the railroad camp, as state witnesses had testified.

Arrested Three Times

Brown said he had been arrested three times in his life, the first time when he was 16 for being with a girl he later married; the second time for fighting and the third for assaulting his wife.

Charles Whittington, at this point, was introduced on the stand to show that he got the sheepskin coat from Brown at the jail and Brown identified it as his coat.

Judge Abernethy, for the state, quizzed Brown as to his activities on the day of the murder and of his hunt for Hill. Brown vehemently maintained that he was hunting Hill for the cook and not to collect the $7 that Hill owed him, as Hill had always paid him his debts.

The defense then called two character witnesses, David Fraser, superintendent for Stum and Dillard company, railroad contractors, and John Jones, timekeeper, who testified that they had known Brown as having a good reputation for peace and quiet and veracity.

Charles Whittington, again called by the defense Friday morning, testified that the sheepskin coat was the same one Brown let him use but it was different now because of being made dirty by his working in it.

Defense Rests

Following Whittington's testimony, the defense rested its case.

The state then introduced Mrs. Ada Morgan, who denied that she had talked with Lowe after Brown was arrested.

Lowe was recalled for cross-examination by the state and he denied that he had gone with Brown to Bell Siding on the day of the murder in the afternoon, but admitted being up there with Brown on the previous Saturday.

The state then called Dwight Lanman, white, who runs the elevator at Bell Siding and Lanman testified that he had seen Brown up at the Siding on Monday afternoon, Nov. 14—the crime day—at about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Asks Another Chance

Mrs. Mary McCullum Averill of Detroit, out on bond under embezzlement charges, claims she needed the money to satisfy the demands of a blackmailer. Mrs. Averill is going to fight for a chance to go back to work and make restitution.

He said he heard the cook ask Brown if he got his $3 and Brown said "No," but that he would get it that evening. Lanman testified that Brown and Lowe took the 4.30 car back to Circleville.

In rebuttal, the state introduced Leona Davis, colored, who testified that she went into Byrd's kitchen the night of the murder, about 10 o'clock, and found Miss Whittington there wringing her hands, that she asked her where Brown was and she replied that she did not know.

Introduce Love Letter

A bit of humor was thrown into the case when Miss Davis on cross-examination, said she had a baby and when Attorney Snyder asked when she answered, "When it was born."

The state recalled Brown who said he had corresponded with Miss Whittington while in jail but that he could not read or write, except his name, and that one of the other prisoners wrote the letters.

Sheriff Davis, on the stand, said he read all the incoming and outgoing mail and had read the letters between Brown and Miss Whittington. One letter of Feb. 15, was introduced signed L. B. Whittington.

Miss Whittington, called by the state, identified this letter of that date as hers, and Judge Brown read it to the jury. It was a love letter from the woman to the defendant.

LARGE CROWD SEES PICTURES OF BIG FIGHT

estine a youthful teacher, Jesus of Nazareth, divine or divinely inspired, who propounded a new doctrine. Instead of retaliation, He taught beneficence: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth,' but I say unto you resist not evil. Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy,' but I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you; that ye may be children of your Father which is in heaven; for He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and the unjust."

"Realizing that weak humanity could hardly lift itself to this high ideal, He took the old law, 'Do unto others as they do unto you,' and, substituting hope for revenge transformed it into: 'Do unto others as you would wish them to do unto you,'—and then elaborated the Golden Rule—'Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.'"

"It is this Golden Rule, laid down by Christ, that the Eagles have adopted as a cardinal precept in this Order. They repeat it in their ritual, hear it in their exhortations and, to the honor of the members, it can be said that they heed it in their fraternal activities. In the fraternity there are calls for neighborly kindness; for visits to the sick; for encouragement of the downhearted. There are occasions to assist those in need; to comfort the afflicted. In short, wherever there is a possibility of doing good to our fellows there Eagles find an opportunity to practice the Golden Rule, positively and actively."

Unutilized Brain Power.

Many efforts are made to develop the unutilized resources of our country. Our water powers, our soils, our rivers, our forests, our industrial power, are not fully utilized. Scientists show us how we can get more of a product out of these resources.

One of our greatest resources is our brain power, and this is said to be the most neglected of all. A new type of research is to be attempted in the effort to make greater use of the brain power of man. Announcement is made that a group of scientists are to attempt such research through the Neurological Institute of New York. It is declared that man so far only acquired a small fraction, about one fifth, of his possible brain power. He has made wonderful progress in controlling the forces of nature, but he can not control his own personality.

War and crime illustrations of how the lack of use of human brain power creates the most terrible wastes.

Schools and colleges are two great forces which are supposed to develop this brain power. They teach boys and girls certain facts and information, but they can not always give them the right point of view. The young people often come out of these institutions with wrong ideals and purposes, and the abilities given them for the benefit of the community, may be turned to making war against the community.

People may not have much learning, but if they naturally support the ideas that are good and useful, they are better citizens than the most learned ones who are morally lax and lawless.

Most of the facts taught in schools are forgotten, but if you can give a student a useful point of view, so that he becomes helpful to his community and his country, then he has gained something more valuable than any knowledge.

Government of the People.

Perhaps the finest way to remember the career of a great man like Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday the American people celebrated Feb. 12, is to think over the principles which he sought to perpetuate.

The boys and girls in the schools of Circleville should not merely be told about his lowly origin, as an incentive to the humblest young person to make the best of one-self, but the great thoughts which are left behind should be interpreted to them. Such for instance, as the resolve which he asked the nation to make, that "government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Government of, for, and by the people is a difficult thing. It had been tried a great many times before our government had been formed, and many times been given up as a failure. It had so many possibilities of error, the people were so easily taken advantage of, that the majority of political thinkers felt it was a dreamy and impossible ideal. A great many republics have been started in the world, and many have gone to pieces, and their people have given up these ideals. Also many republics now existing are practically governed by dictators, and popular government in them is a sham.

But the founders of our government said that with a sound foundation of laws and constitutions, the idea could be made to work. And it has worked in our country for 139 years, and so far as we can see, it bids fair to work for all time. But this kind of government does not run itself. It calls for two things, popular education and intelligence and a willingness on the part of the people to give some attention to the work of government.

If they neglect the duty of government, certain types of politicians and selfish interests will run it for their own benefit, and it will cease to be of, by, and for the people.

The Weak and the Strong.

"The smallest and weakest nation speaks here with the same authority as the largest and most powerful," said President Coolidge in his address to the Pan-American congress at Havana. It may be difficult for some of our proud Americans to swallow that doctrine, and to admit that the little republics of Central America are entitled to as much weight as our grand country.

Of course the big countries have the major part of the world's work to do, and they must take a major share in deciding the world's policies. But the American nation has consecrated itself to upholding the view that the rights of the weak are just as sacred as those of the strong.

We have fallen short of that ideal in our own national life, yet we admit that it ought to be realized. When the human race attains finer purposes, it will feel that any form of civilization is hard and unworthy which fails to give weakness its full rights.

It is true that "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver" but there's an idea deeply planted in our mind that He also has a good opinion of a cheerful loser.—Zanesville, O., Signal.

BLIND?

BUT a thousand tender dreams
Come to him
When the firelight gleams,
Thoughts that his lack of sight
Has taught,
And to him
This same blindness brought—
Dreams of another sunny day
When faring forth
He ran to greet
Her, ah! her hair seemed golden
To him
Standing there;
Gods of another day,
They come
When busy life has ceased
Its hum,
To run rampant,
His darkened sight
Sight
Can see them pacing
Through the night—
Blind? You say—
What of the soul
That sees a past,
Though not
A goal—

And what we mean to say
Is,
Close your eyes and
Your dreams arise,
And dot far reaches
Of the skies,
Man can escape his future vow
But he cannot hide
From his living now,
And neither can
Life of another day
Though blind,
Be hidden or stored
Away.

The sun is just as bright as the glasses you look through it are clean.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picture adaptation of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescant, beautiful orphan, who is coveted by hideous Count Ravoire. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoire. She resents Fabien, and they live so extravagantly that Fabien is forced to capitalize a genius for cards. The king plays Fabien at cards for Manon, accuses him of cheating. Manon is spirited to prison, Fabien goes there to rescue her, and is faced by Ravoire.

"You!" exclaimed Fabien in amazement; then continued, "There must be some mistake, I wish to see the Provost of Police."

"I am he!" the Comte replied with a satisfied smile that turned into a sneer. "What do you want?"

"I heard that you had Manon put in here and came to get her out—I did not know that you were the Provost." Fabien tried to control the hopeless feeling that surged over him.

"No one can get her out, she is to be deported!" The Comte was enjoying his revenge.

"Deported!" exclaimed Fabien in horror. "Why? She has broken no laws."

"No?—Well, perhaps you and I have broken them for her, at least we have helped her break them; and the fact remains that she is what a beautiful picture the caravans made. It was more than Fabien could endure. It had the effect of changing him into a mad man. He sprang at the Comte's throat and held it in a grip that was deadly. His face was convulsed with hatred and rage.

"You killed Manon's brother like the coward that you are! You have ruined her life! Isn't there any manhood in you? Come on—stand on your feet and fight for your life—if you want it!"

He released the Comte's throat and stood back long enough for him to recover. Then they locked in a fierce struggle and rolled over and over on the floor. The Comte's hand came in contact with a heavy iron bar and he was bringing it down with a smashing blow when Fabien worked himself free just in time to escape having his head crushed. Again Fabien attacked his victim, and this time he had no mercy. His hands went about the Comte's throat and he shook him like a ferret does a rat. When he felt the body go limp in his grasp he straightened up in surprise. It seemed incredible that his slight hands had been strong enough to crush the life out of a man—for there was no doubt about the Comte being dead. Nor was there any reason Fabien should lose valuable time regretting a thing that had been his self appointed duty.

The Comte had killed Lescant in a cowardly attack, he had insulted Manon beyond repair and sent her to a living death in the Colonies. Yes, he deserved his inglorious death and it was justice that Fabien should have been the one to avenge his friends.

Cautiously approaching the door he assured himself that the struggle had not been heard by the secretary or guard. All trace of the murder must be cleared away so that he could leave without being stopped and reach Manon before the tragedy had been discovered. With great effort he dragged the Comte's body to the desk and lifted it to a sitting position in the high backed chair. In one outstretched hand he placed a tall quill pen.

If anyone entered the door it would appear that the Comte was busily engaged with his work. Satisfied with the arrangement Fabien devoted a few moments to making himself presentable then, opening the door, so that the Secretary could see in—his turned back and said, as though speaking to the Comte, "I shall see that you are not disturbed, Monsieur."

Fabien went out and closed the door. He longed to run through the corridor and follow Manon in her miserable caravan; but discretion cautioned him to linger and avert suspicion that might otherwise make him prisoner on the spot with no hope of ever seeing her again.

"Monsieur, is not in the best of moods," said Fabien as he paused at the secretary's desk with a friendly little warning. "You are fortunate that he prefers to be left alone." Then with an assumption of unconcern he sauntered out of the prison and began walking rapidly along the road to Havre. Every few steps he would look back, fearful that the murder had been discovered and a guard sent after him.

As the minutes passed and no one appeared, Fabien's walk quickened into a run and he pushed on in search of his loved one.

Since meeting Manon that Spring morning at the White Horse Inn, Fabien's path had been strewn with many obstacles; but the assurance of her love—in return for his own—made it easy and delightful.

He had gone through sorrow and suffering. He had stolen, or cheated at cards; it amounted to the same thing. He had given up his family, renounced his inheritance, insulted the King and even committed murder. And now, Manon; his love, his very life, the one for whom he had done everything; was being taken away from him forever!

Heart sick, tired, lonely, frightened and even hungry, he stumbled along the dusty road with the hope that he could overtake Manon's caravan and hold her in his arms once more.

CHAPTER XX

"Who will care for my little Jean—my baby—my baby!" moaned the miserable young girl who was chained next to Manon in the cart. "Stop your bawling!" snarled a hard faced woman from her place on the dirty straw that covered the bottom of the wagon. "Why didn't you think of the baby before you got it? Now shut up so I can enjoy the scenery." The woman laughed raucously. She was one of the group, to use her own words: "Don't care a hang about being deported to America—men are just the same, no matter what side of the ocean they live on—besides a change of scene is stimulating."

Famous Huskies Go Into Training For International Dogsled Derby

L. N. S. Special Correspondent

QUEBEC, Feb. 17.—They are going to run the Sixth Eastern International Dogsled Derby, the big classic in dog marathons here on Feb. 20-21-22 over a hilly forty-mile court total elapsed time for the three days' racing to decide who gets the blue ribbon, $1,000 in cash, a silver cup and a leg on the big challenge trophy. And so great is the interest already evident that drivers training their dogs are casting appraising eyes on every loose canine in the city with a view to improving a weak spot in the teams.

Emile St. Goddard, of Le Pas, who will run again with Brydges and Shorty Russick, also of Le Pas, Manitoba, has two legs on the trophy and is alone in this respect, so that Sappala, the Alaskan who gained fame by running the antitoxin serum into Nome a few years ago to prevent the spread of an epidemic, Russick who holds the world's 200-mile non-stop record and the French-Canadian crowd here, will strain every muscle to keep St. Goddard from mushing home with the banner. Channing of Boston, Walter of Wonalancet, N. H., and other New Englanders constitute the third faction to be reckoned with.

Old Winners On Hand

St. Goddard ran up a new record last year here with a time of 11 hours, 37 minutes and 35 seconds or better than ten mile an hour including the hills while Sappala slid in 20 minutes and 20 seconds behind him for second prize.

Cheverette, of Quebec, Paddy Nalan the 15-year-old musher, and Frank Dupuis, winner in 1926 took the remaining prizes.

Sappala has a nice string of huskies. St. Goddard has changed several of his dogs, while Russick who lost his two years ago from influenza has a team of tan pups which are the topic of conversation among the drivers. Russick recently lost his partner up in Cold Lake where he runs a trading post when McDonald went to cut grass on the lake and fell through the ice. Russick and his team brought the body into Le Pas covering more than 1,000 miles altogether.

The New England triangular 30 mile race starting from Wolfboro, N. H., to be run in four days is considered just a good preliminary to the Quebec classic and according to H. F. Sutton, Chicago sportsman who is sponsoring Russick, will determine whether Russick's huskies are fit for the big grind.

St. Goddard is eager to clinch the trophy but will not comment upon his possibilities. He is known as a brainy musher and two years ago he ran the course against a doctor's orders. Frank Dupuis is a lighthouse keeper on the St. Lawrence, his wife being recognized as the power behind the throne in training matters. Cheverette, another French-Canadian is an excitable but excellent musher, and young Paddy Nolan may this year surprise the spectators since he grabbed off fourth place over Dupuis last year.

Crowds on Hand

of highly excited residents will throng the course. A special veterinarian will examine all the dogs which also receive their dash of green paint behind the ear to prevent dater substitutions. Four feet of snow here at present is likely to remain which means hard going in the country. The tandem hitch will also be the most probable one by which each dog is hitched behind the leader. This will be considerable responsibility on the lead dogs which seem almost human in sagacity and which by threatening growls and bared teeth, keep the laggards at fighting pitch.

The growth of dogsled derbies in Canada and the United States has been rapid and attempts are being made to form an International Dogsled Protective Association to maintain the sport at a high standard. If this comes into being, a regular circuit will likely be established including Western Canada, the middle Northern States adjoining, Ontario, Quebec and New England. Meanwhile the question as to whether the husky with a strain of wolf is a better all-round dog than the stag wolf and greyhounds, is unsettled.

British Firm Is Given Contract For Greatest Sluice Gates In World

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(INS)—

The contract for the sluice gates for the Sukkur barrage, on the River Indus, the biggest of its kind in the world, has been placed by the India office with the firm of Ransome and Rapier, of Ipswich, England.

A metal gate, 60 feet wide and 18 feet, 6 inches deep will be fitted in each of the 66 spans of the barrage.

The Sukkur barrage will provide irrigation for 6,000,000 acres in the province of Sind. Seven canals will take off from the barrage, one of them, the Rohri canal with a length of 200 miles, being the largest of its type.

Each gate will weigh about 40 tons and the water load on it, when holding up to the full supply level will be 300 tons.

Seek Carnegie Medal For College Girl 18 Who Dived Under Ice

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 17.—

(INS)—A Carnegie medal in recognition of bravery is being sought in this section for Miss June Humphries, 18-year-old Montreat Normal student.

The girl heroically rescued Carl Williams, 14, when he fell through the ice while skating on Lake Susan. The girl dived under the ice several times in trying to reach the boy.

Wadsworth Assures Hawaiian G. O. P.'s

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 17.—

(UP)—Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, on a brief vacation in Hawaii, declared that New York political conditions are so chaotic it is impossible for him to say

Helen of Troy ran away from her husband, and lived with another man.

After years of fighting, in which thousands were killed, the husband captured Helen and brought her back home.

The neighbors supposed his purpose was to bolt her in oil. Instead, he forgave her, and again put her in charge of his home.

Did Helen appreciate his mercy? She certainly did not; she bossed her husband more cruelly than ever before, and made a fool of him on every possible occasion.

Some are like that; they regard forgiveness as license for still worse offending.

Our favorite meanness is to praise some things more than they deserve. Of every particularly successful man, it is said by his special enemies that his wife, or his head clerk, "made him."

The question has been raised what two men would do, who lived a solitary life in the wilds, and met each other for the first time. Pufendorf believed they would approach each other as friends; Hobbes, on the contrary, as enemies; Rousseau, that they would pass each other by in silence.

Pufendorf, of course, is right. Did not Robinson Crusoe welcome even Friday, a poor native who could not speak his language?

The critics are right; the people are an abused lot; and the critics are not any better than the rest of us.

There is no woman who gives us the radiant dreams that lurk beneath the word Woman; there is no wine that realizes the intoxication imagined by the word Wine; there is no perfume that our devoted nostrils find equal to the word Perfume; all is too little for the word All, and no nothingness is an empty enough vanity to be that arch-terrorist word Nothing.—Emile Tennequin.

In a town I know, five families applied for public charity within three days, although owners of automobiles. I know a man and his wife who own an automobile, and receive aid from the county for years, although both are employed and have their home paid for.

All have a good many humiliations, and are more agreeable because of them. What a rule lot we should be with only success to our credit! Were our bodies perfect we should not be content to be followed by the gods; we should insist upon giving the gods advice.

whether he shall ever be a candidate for the senate again.

Wadsworth predicted that the Republican party is assured of victory in the next presidential election because of prosperous conditions brought about during the administration of President Coolidge.

Talking with politicians and business men here Wadsworth said that while in the senate he was glad to vote many times for a high protective tariff which would protect Hawaii's sugar interests.

When it is stated that a man has "hit" on a new plan, if often means that he has been battling the air a long time before he did it.—Bellevue, O. Examiner.

statement soak in and let no one kid himself into believing that his popularity among a certain class will win, for that is absolutely wrong.

The candidates who have entered the big campaign and who will enter the fight for prizes will be printed next Saturday, then the campaign will have begun in dead earnest. Friends of the candidates will be glad to subscribe and re-subscribe when they see who is to participate in the race. Their names and the votes due them will be printed on that day templating getting into the campaign to send or bring their names in before Saturday noon, so it may appear in Saturday evening's Herald. It will be a distinct advantage to have your name in the first published list. So bring it in at once, get a receipt book and get busy right away—that is the best way to win.

You can enter the campaign next the proper time to get started, while the field is fresh and subscriptions are very easy to get. The prizes will be won by someone during their spare time, that is a certain fact, for now-a-days people who do things, who get ahead in life's battles, are busy with regular duties, and will find time to handle their subscription campaign at the same time.

You who have entered and are working, and you who will enter today, bear in mind that triple votes are given for every subscription up until next Friday. This is your best chance to roll together several hundred thousand votes and the advice of the writer is simply, to get busy and stay busy, make as big a report as possible Friday of next week.

ROBERT LEE'S QUINTET TROUNCES C. A. C. TEAM

LAST CONTEST OF SEASON IS VERY UNEQUAL

Local Players Fight Gamely But In Vain Against Powerful Columbus Crew.

In the last game of the season, the C. A. C. quintet took on overwhelming defeat from Robert Lee's Huberdashers, by a 56 to 30 score here Thursday night.

While the C. A. C. boys worked hard enough, it cannot be denied they were completely outclassed, both in floor work and basket shooting, yet they must have much deserved credit for the fight they displayed, and it must be said that they went down struggling to stop the onslaught of the visitors.

The game was started by Gattrell scoring a free throw for the first part of the contest, which, however, was soon followed by a field goal by Bill Hunt. The first quarter was the thriller of the game, with first one team then the other scoring, and that the fans on their feet every minute. But after the visitors got going the club was powerless to stop them, and at the half, they were on the long end of a 29 to 18 score.

At no time during the latter part of the game were they in danger.

The club boys fought hard throughout the game, making ev-

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

4 FLOOR GAMES ARE CARDED AT ATHLETIC CLUB

game of the evening, Jackson girls, with their size, should be able to take care of Williamsport, but they must fight. This game should be close and hard fought.

Play will be resumed Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock, with Muhlenberg and Walnut boys on the floor. Both teams have enviable records this year, and the game promises to be hard fought and fast, the winner probably meeting the strong New Holland team in the second round. The two teams have not met this year, and go in to the game, fighting to win. The outcome cannot be predicted safely. Both are fighting aggregations, and should provide a real scrap.

Girls To Battle

In the only girls game of the morning, Muhlenberg meets New Holland. Muhlenberg, while not as strong as last year, promises, a fight. New Holland is always ready for a real battle, so this should be a good exhibition.

The Deercreek (Williamsport) boys meet the Monroe boys in the last game of the morning session. Deercreek has a victory to its credit over Monroe earlier in the season, but reports from the northwest indicate that they have improved so much that they may be considered championship timber. The game promises to be fast, and its result may determine the winner of the lower half of the schedule, which meets the conqueror of the upper half in the finals.

In the first game of Saturday afternoon, the Pickaway girls who have lost only one game, and that by a few points to the Walnut maids, meet the Perry township girls. Early in the season these two teams met, and the Pickaway girls had little trouble in winning. They should repeat.

Pick New Holland

Last years boys' champions, Scott, with practically the whole team intact, will play its first tournament game with Jackson, next. New Holland should easily defeat the Jackson boys without much effort.

In the last game of the afternoon, Washington and Ashville girls will play. Washington girls have been playing excellent basketball, while the record of Ashville is also very good. This game should be a real scrap with perhaps Ashville having the edge.

Atlanta boys, who are real championship contenders and conceded by many to have the best chance of defeating New Holland, open the second round of the tournament with the winner of Washington and Scioto game. This should be a runaway game for them, as they have already defeated Scioto by some 30 points. The Atlanta team is small but speedy, and excellent passers. They have received only one defeat during the season.

Champions Intact

Monroe and Scioto girls tie up for the last game of the first round of the girls' schedule. Monroe is conceded to be the real title contenders this year, and like the New Holland boys, they have their last years' championship team practically intact.

In the third game of this season Salt creek, who drew a bye, will meet the winner of the Ashville-Darby game which will probably be Ashville. Salt creek has defeated Ashville at Ashville this year, but with the improvement that the Ashville team has shown lately the results may be different. At least a real fight is expected, with Hartman working hard for Salt creek, and Cloud doing the same for Ashville.

The winners of the Walnut-Salt creek game will meet the winners of the Deercreek-Jackson game in the last game of this week's games. Walnut should

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

A sensible solution to the difficulty of finding a logical opponent for Gene Tunney would be to have the champion fight each of the contenders.

One fight a month should keep the heavyweight titleholder in condition and funds.

There is nothing silly about the suggestion. In the old days, Tunney would have had to do that very thing, or he wouldn't have been recognized as champion. Any fighter who could get the necessary backing could challenge for the title, and the champion either fought or was branded as afraid.

Nowadays, a champion laughs when he is accused of being afraid. He knows the public will overlook his running away from dangerous opponents if he provides the glamor of a title fight with a "set-up."

Take Gene Tunney's case. Would he fight George Godfrey, for example? Certainly not. Moreover, he would have no shame in evading a match with the negro. And he would go somewhere and fight Jack Dempsey, the easiest kind of a push-over for him, a third time. And then talk over the radio about uplifting the sport of boxing and about what is can do for the youth of today.

It is fortunate that the youth of today is too busy to develop perception.

There are six prominent contenders for Tunney's title: Godfrey, Paulino Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko.

Instead of trying to figure out which of the lot can help earn him $1,000,000 for 30 minutes' work, what would be more reasonable than for Gene himself to decide which of the challengers he would like to fight first, and proceed to do so? Then, if still champion, he could take on the next one, and so on, down the line, until the name of Tunney became a by-word for the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and not for that of a rather bored student of Shakespeare.

There is, of course, an essential difference between a champion of today and yesterday. In by-gone days, a man was heavyweight champion of the world because he liked to be, because he was a fighter, and chose to storm and swagger through the speak loudies of his period. Nowadays, why is a heavyweight champion? Perhaps my occasional correspondent, Mr. J. Carupa, of Harrisburg, Pa., can furnish the answer.

With these few unkind words about Gene Tunney's good intentions, I must now go on record as being firmly convinced that the heavyweight champion could go through with a program of one fight a month against his more dangerous challengers and whip them all with comparative ease.

Tunney would knock Godfrey's head off within a few rounds, and Lieperville would join Harlem in the limbo of discarded haunts of black menaces. Gene would beat Delaney with an ease which would distress the admirers of the Bridgeport boxer. The champion could whip Risko and Heeney in the same evening.

What then of Sharkey and Paulino? In a long fight, the latter would give the titleholder plenty of trouble. In a short fight, limited to six rounds or so, Sharkey would do the same. By choosing his distance carefully, I think Tunney could make Sharkey quit and outpoint Paulino.

Then there would be less derision in the voices of those who have occasion to refer to the heavyweight champion of the world.

come out the winner, but most anything can happen in tournaments.

Prepare Summary

A general summary of expected results will appear before the games which will be resumed next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The upper bracket in the boys' games seem to contain the harder teams, with New Holland, Atlanta, Darbyville, and Walnut the chief contenders. The lower bracket is made up of teams which are more evenly matched, with no one team having a decided advantage over the others. In the girls' teams, Monroe seems to be the favorite, with Walnut and Pickaway a close second. Walnut is in the upper bracket which seems to be the easiest, for should Monroe win her preliminary games, and Pickaway do the same, these two teams would have to meet in the semi-finals.

Two large loving cups are to be awarded at the close of the tournament; one to the winner of the boys and the others to the winner of the girls. Before they go to any one school, 23 real scraps will have to be fought. May the best teams win them.

TIGERS PLAY HILLSBORO AT GYM TONIGHT

Circleville Basketeers Hope to Get Revenge For Early Season Defeat.

The Circleville high school Tigers have been sharpening their teeth and smoothing their whiskers all week in anticipation of the Hillsboro-Circleville tilt Friday evening in the high school gym.

A few weeks ago Hillsboro caught the Tigers napping, and before they had both eyes open, they discovered they were beaten, 19 to 14.

The team has different plans for Friday night, and maybe it will be too bad for Hillsboro. Pickens will start at center, Bales and Davis forwards, and Peters and Marion, guards. Baseman of Columbus will be the referee.

The girls' team will play Bliss College, and this will be the last opportunity to see Fay Puckett on the home court. The girls' team has played all season with plenty of action, and they have become one of the big drawing cards.

SURE WAY TO STOP NIGHT COUGHING

A Prescription That Ends Night Coughs in 15 Minutes

Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. Ask remarkable prescription known as Thoxine, working on an entirely different principle, goes directly to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. No chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe for children. Equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Ask for Thoxine. 35c, 60c and $1.00. Sold by Hamilton & Ryan and all good drug stores. (Adv.)

WILMINGTON ADDS ANOTHER VICTORY

WILMINGTON, Feb. 17.—Fast pass work and accurate goal shooting were the important factors in Wilmington defeating Greenfield, 39 to 32 last night on the Wilmington court in a South Central Ohio High School League contest. The victory marked the tenth consecutive one for the locals. Garrison of Wilmington was high point man with 16 markers while Head scored the highest for the visitors when he counted seven points.

"Orientation" Courses
Just as in psychology, orientation signifies an adjustment of the organism to its environment, so in education an orientation course is intended to adjust the student to his educational environment and enable him to determine his bearings. Columbia university instituted the orientation courses for freshmen, and such courses are offered at Amherst, Antioch, Brown, Dartmouth, Johns Hopkins, Leland Stanford, Missouri, Princeton, Rutgers, Williams, and other universities.

Ornithological Term
The term "chatterer" was formerly applied to the waxwings and some related birds with little applicability. It is now, with more or less propriety, restricted by ornithologists to the South American passerine family Cotingidae, which may be better called "cotingas."

What of It?
Modern women weep less, but what of it? A kid never cries after it gets the candy.—San Francisco Chronicle.

To Prevent Vermin on Sheep During Winter

To prevent lice from infesting sheep in winter it is advisable to dip the animals in autumn. A solution of any standard coal-tar dip will suffice for the purpose, if used strictly according to the instructions given by the manufacturer. Then the dipped sheep should be kept out of houses and pens that have not been scrupulously cleaned, disinfected and whitewashed for their reception.

Afterward be careful not to introduce new sheep that have not been treated for destruction of lice. Ticks are even more annoying and the same treatment gets rid of them. The dipping, however, should be done shortly after shearing, including the lambs, when the ticks from the adult sheep have migrated to them, and should be repeated in autumn, before the weather becomes too cold.

Give Sow Proper Care After Birth of Pigs

A good house does not end the hog man's responsibility to the brood sow. Be sure that none of the feed given immediately after farrowing is sour or moldy. Better yet, give nothing but clean, cool water for the first 24 hours, or, at most, a thin slop. Gradually get the sow back on full feed in ten days to two weeks.

Lack of protein, such as milk and tankage, in the ration is one, though not the most prevalent, of the causes for sows eating their pigs. A more frequent reason, specialists find, is a feverish condition of the sow. This may be due to several things, among them over-feeding, particularly of corn; the quarters may be too cold and draughty; or there may be digestive disturbances.

Mortality Among Colts

In the case of horses the fact that in this country they are usually handled in large numbers only in parts of the West where conditions are not so favorable for parasites as they are in the Middle West, South and East may simplify the control of mortality among colts. With only a few horses on a farm, pasture rotation, and control measures are feasible. Specific measures for the control of infectious joint disease and related conditions will be necessary.

Sure to Be Evil

The evil that men do lives after them, says the bard of Avon. And if there isn't any, the biographer will invent some.

In Case of Fire

Children should be taught plain facts concerning the dangers. Impress upon them the folly of running about if their clothing is on fire. Teach them that it is better to smother the flames with a rug or quilt rather than fan the flames and spread them all over the body.

What Then?

Children aren't bothered with pyrrhena, says a physician. Aren't they? Suppose the poor youngsters have to spell it?

5,000 Soul Village, Close By Richest Copper Mine, Is Slipping Into Valley

By THOMAS R. CURRAN
JEROME, Ariz. Feb. 17—(UP)—
U. P. Staff Correspondent
—Built over a giant earth fault, this Arizona town of some 5,000 inhabitants is slowly slipping into the valleys surrounding the world's richest copper mine.

Jerome is perched on the side of a huge ore-laden hill, 35 miles from Prescott. The business building and the workers' houses cling tenaciously to the slope. Main street is a mountain road circling the hill.

Some time ago a pronounced slip was noticed. Cracks appeared in office buildings; streets buckled and rose.

Then a church toppled down. The roof fell, the walls tumbled and the floor caved in. Fortunately, no worshippers were caught in the crash, as services had been discontinued when the slow working menace first appeared.

The Verde Copper Company, whose copper catcombs make the town possible, brought in geologists and engineers to study the problem. They found a huge earth fault cut diagonally across the town.

The fault stretched below a number of important buildings, including the church which had collapsed. The town hospital, it was discovered, was partly over the fault, endangering the lives of patients in that section of the building.

The copper company ordered the menaced portion of the hospital wrecked, the remainder was left whole and was used for other purposes. A new hospital was built.

Ten or more downtown buildings and residences have been officially condemned. Others are menaced. Visitors plainly see the jagged irregular cracks in the brick and concrete office structures, and the ominous bulge in walls and street.

The natives themselves, however, like the happy-hearted Italian villagers living near Vesuvius, give scarcely a thought to the ever-present peril.

Nevertheless, Jerome eventually must move. It may be a year, it may be five, but sooner or later the yawning hole beneath will swallow up the town.

Publicly geologists minimize the danger. They are unwilling to alarm the residents needlessly. Secretly, however, they admit that the town site is hopeless and that some day the workers and business men must move to another hillside or down into the sheltered security of Deception Gulch.

Meanwhile, a slight earth tremor or a heavy fall of rain may bring on a catastrophe that would rock the world.

Atlanta

Mrs. Almada Bennett and son, Bertus Carleton, were guests of the Williamsport L. T. L. meeting, Saturday afternoon. Bertus Carleton assisted on the program with a musical number and responded to an encore.

Mrs. George H. Adkins, Margaret and Parker, were visitors at Washington C. H. last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wright and children, Martha Ellen and Neal, were guests Sunday of Clarence Wood and family, at Starinton.

Supt. Cox installed an Atwater Kent Radio in the school auditorium, last Friday morning, and gave the school children the privilege of listening to the special program by Walter Damrosch.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertus H. Moore and sons, Junior and Joe, of Williamsport, were dinner guests of Harmon Ater's last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ater were visitors at Circleville, Thursday.

Mrs. Lizzie Mowery was the over Sunday guest of her sister, Mrs. Lee Hancock.

Mrs. Beatrice Slagle was hostess to the W. C. T. U. at her home last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Blanche Hoskins had the devotionals and conducted the business. Marie Skinner, Beatrice Slagle and Ellen Peck were appointed leaders for the L. T. L. Mrs. Edyth Cleary led the program. Each member answered roll call with a Francis Willard quotation. "Memorial Dollars Come to Rescue in Time of Need," by Alice Conrad; "Fund Funds National Organizers," Anna Harriman; "Tribute to Francis Willard," Mae Betts; "Willard Memorial Fund," Hattie Ater. The program closed by singing, "Some Glad Day," and repeating the benediction. During the social hour, the hostess and assistants served hot buttered rolls, fruit salad and coffee.

George H. Adkins and daughter, Dorothy, spent last Saturday in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Louella Grabill is spending this week with her son, Joe Grabill and family, near New Holland.

"Betty Fairfax" of the Columbus Dispatch, will be here Tuesday night, February 21st, and talk to any one interested in her line of work. The Parent Teachers Association will serve dinner from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Menu consisting of roast chicken, mashed potatoes, noodles, cranberries, fruit salad, pie a-la-mode, buttered rolls, coffee.

Proceeds will go for the benefit of P. T. A. work.

"Betty will be the guest of honor. Come five hundred strong. Bring your wife and daughter. And help to swell the throng."

"Now just think it over. And try and do your best. We hope that Betty will lure you, Tuesday night to us our guest."

Here's Milkman Who Fought Mighty John D.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER AND (inset) JOHN J. FOLEY

If you were looking around the world for opponents, you'd hardly pick on John D. Rockefeller as an easy one. Yet that's what happened when the late Michael Foley girded his loons for battle in the pretty environs of Pocantico Hills, N. Y. And after he died, his son, John J., continued the fight, which was over the closing of a cross-country road.

For more than 25 years the dispute raged. Foley had battled tooth and nail against the closing of that road, and passed on the heritage to the son, who continued the fight as long as Foley could.

Then one day, by chance, the younger Foley, a milkman, happened to be driving through the Rockefeller estate and encountered John D., Jr. They talked things over, shook hands and agreed to arbitrate. Which they did.

Says Milkman Foley: "I never did business with a finer fellow than Mr. Rockefeller."

Thus ended another "war."

daughters Hazel and Marie, and Miss Florence Stai, of Columbus, visited Mrs. Joanna Swoyer and daughter Stella, Sunday.

Dr. C. J. Rockey was confined to his home several days this week, on account of an infected lip and throat.

Mr. W. H. Plum, who is in the Lancaster hospital, having undergone an appendicitis operation recently, is improving nicely.

Mrs. Roy E. Bowsher entertained at luncheon, Thursday, the members of her bridge club: Mrs. Clyde Lamb, Mrs. Clara Poole, Mrs. Goldie Beckett, Mrs. Florence Dennis, Mrs. Elsie Beckett, Mrs. Georgia Beckett, Mrs. Anna Carpenter, Mrs. Gladys Carpenter, and Mrs. Norene Gray. The guests were: Mrs. Samuel Holiday, Mrs. P. C. Florence, Mrs. N. Bornheim, and Mrs. Ralph Paul, of Columbus; Mrs. E. J. Rife, of Circleville, and Mrs. Clyde Brinker, of Ashville. New Under Things, Flowing Tea Gowns Fragile and Airy, Shown at Florida Shops

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17—(UP)—The air confections which underlie the dainty gowns worn by day and evening seem to be approaching the vanishing point. That is, except in price.

So saving in lingerie has the smartly-gowned maid and matron of the winter colony become that here in one garment, which is called a three-in-one, are combined the duties of a brassiere, teddies and a slip.

This fragile thing is constructed of indestructible voile, so-called, in a pastel shade of blue, with embroidery and lace trim. It is designed for use with extremely low cut dance and evening frocks, and hence has practically no back at all. The nether part replaces teddies and the lace and voile waist-ette does duty as a brassiere.

It is hardly more tangible than the breeze which gently swishes the fronds of the palms, but the smart saleswoman will tell you it retails for fifty dollars and not bluish as she says it.

Then here is a teddy in satin peach, with French lace and ecru. The price? Oh, sixty dollars.

Leaving the boudoir a little distance behind, the style explorer finds that tea gowns, in which the hostess may entertain her feminine friends at tea, say, have a charm built on soft flowing lines and lace and silver trim, the metallic adornments being so lacy and light that they are quite in keeping with the daintiness of the gown.

These gowns have flowing chiffon sleeves and a fish tail train, as long but not as heavy as a
